BERLIN REPLY TO NOTE FROM ALLIES FOUND ACCEPTABLE

Inspection To Be Made As Early As Possible

THE 5 CONDITIONS

Impossible To Finish Control By First Of September

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 1.—Well-informed circles in London consider that the German reply is generally satisfactory, though it seems impossible to agree to the proposal that the work of control should finish by September 30.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 1.—The German Note has created a not unfavorable impression in competent Allied quarters. The question of the date on which the inspection will end is not likely to create difficulties.

While rejecting the idea of a fixed date, the Allies will probably promise a complete inspection as early as possible, compatible with thoroughness.

Two more serious obstacles are, firstly, the absence of any mention of the five conditions which, the Conference of Ambassadors declared, must be carried out before the control is handed over to the League of Nations, and, secondly, the stipulation for a preliminary agreement with regard to ways and means of carrying out the inspection.

There is no reason to anticipate that the Conference of Ambassadors will forego satisfaction on the five conditions, while the preliminary agreement must not imply restriction of full exercise of the right of inspection.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 1.—The Cabinet was appointed General Walch President of the Control Commission in Berlin. He will replace General Nollet, who has been appointed Minister of War in M. Herriot's Cabinet. It has also been decided to replace on the active list General Barrail, former Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in the Near East.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 1.—The acceptance by Italy and Belgium of the invitation to be present at the London Conference has been received, as also that of the United States. The latter invitation provides that the American delegate shall sit as an observer. Poland and Czecho-Slovakia will not be invited and, according to the London Daily News, the British Dominions will not participate.

Herr Stresemann, commenting to foreign journalists on the reply of the German Government relative to control of armaments, declared that the security of the Allied officials charged with the operations would be compromised if agreements on the mode of inspections were not concluded. He added that the stipulations of the Dawes Plan went beyond those to which the Reich had subscribed at Versailles. The Reich would therefore demand in compensation the evacuation of the occupied territory.

The German Nationalist Press condemns acceptance of the Note. The Kreuzerzeitung declares that the inspection will wound the honor of the German army.

Unemployment Is Theme At Genva

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 1.—According to a telegram from Geneva, the International Labor Conference today examined the general conclusions of the inquiry into various factors, such as the functioning of credit, the instability of prices and the fluctuation of exchanges, which may prevent the parallel and continuous development of consumption and production and thus diminish the stability of employment. The Conference invites the Governments to take part in the inquiry and to report on unemployment in their country. The text proposed by the committee was adopted unanimously.

Aviators Will Hunt Couple In Wilds

MISS HELEN COLE

Aviators are searching through the desolate Mountain Lake region of New Jersey for Helen Cole, California sculptress, and Charles Carter, a friend. They left a house party several days ago, clad in evening dress, to find and make shelter for themselves and get enough food to sustain life, as did the hero and heroine of a recent novel by Arthur Stringer. Fears were felt for their safety.

PEKING CABINET OUT, PORTFOLIOS TO BE SHUFFLED

No One In Sight Just Now To Take Sun Pao-chi's Place

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 2. The Cabinet debacle appears complete today. Mr. Sun Pao-chi's colleagues [illegible] resigning only as a matter of loyalty to a chief, whom all respected. But there is no new Premier in sight at present for Admiral Wu Yu-lin, Dr. W. W. Yen and Dr. Wellington Koo have all put forward objections to their forming a Ministry. It is the general opinion that the situation will merely result in a re-shuffle of portfolios under Dr. Wellington Koo. Meanwhile the usual exchanges of views are occurring between Peking and the outside military leaders. The President has not yet replied to the Cabinet resignations, but it is expected that after one, or perhaps two, rejections, acceptance will be granted.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 1.—The Premier, Mr. Sun Pao-chi, attended the Cabinet meeting this morning and announced his intention to resign, whereupon the other members of the Cabinet decided to resign en bloc. The resignations went to the President this evening.

Portuguese Consul Accident Victim

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, July 1.—With reference to the accident that happened to the Portuguese Consul-General here, the Eastern News Agency learns from an authoritative source that he did not intend to commit suicide but that while he was handling his revolver it exploded unexpectedly. The wound is not so serious as reported.

MacLaren, British Flier, Due Here From Foochow At About Eleven O'clock

Aviator Plans Early Start From Down Coast City; Arrangements Made For Greeting And Entertaining Him Here

Squadron-Leader Maclaren, British flyer who has been winging his way around the globe with great pluck despite the numerous misfortunes that have befallen him and his two companions, is due to arrive in Shanghai today.

The British flyer left Hongkong at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, and at 4:50 yesterday afternoon landed safely at Pagoda Anchorage at Foochow. He will take off from Foochow sometime this morning and is expected in Shanghai between four and five hours after he hops off. It is generally expected that he will arrive at Black Point, the same place in the Whangpoo where the American flyers landed, around noon today.

Squadron-Leader Maclaren will be greeted upon his arrival here by the British Consul-General, Mr. S. Barton, as well as by representatives of a number of organisations and a number of individuals who wish to pay tribute to the flying man and his companions and also to add the end of his flight here to their trio of such experiences during the last month.

Because of the unofficial nature of the flight—Squadron-Leader Maclaren is not making the trip under the auspices of the British Government, and has received no help from the government on his long flight, his welcome here will not be so pretentious as the welcome extended the Americas flyers, or to Captain D'Oisy, the French ace.

In the same launch with Mr. Barton will go the presidents of the various national societies, a delegation of former officers in the Royal Flying Corps, and other official guests. The Customs and Harbor officials have made all arrangements to see that the river is clear when the flyer lands, and the actual landing and mooring will be taken charge of by the officials of the Asiatic Petroleum Company.

Shanghai Club To Dine MacLaren

The members of the Shanghai Club will entertain Squadron-leader MacLaren and his two aides at tiffin on Thursday, July fourth. The tiffin will be restricted to club members and reservation should be made with the Secretary before 8 o'clock tonight.

DESECRATOR OF U.S. FLAG IN TOKIO IS UNDER ARREST

Japanese Officials Express Regrets To Americans

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 2.—The Government's intention to introduce during the present session a Bill aiming at abolition of dual nationality for Japanese was announced by Baron Shidehara, the Foreign Minister, this morning during a debate in the House of Peers on questions affecting America and Japan, especially yesterday's flag incident which Government and other speakers very deeply deplored.

Baron Sakatani, who was the principal interpellator, seriously called attention to the situation and urged more practical attempts than protests to reach a solution. He suggested an interchange of views between representative Amerians and Japanese.

Replying, Baron Shidehara assured the House that the American Government and people appreciated and sympathised with Japan's position. He expressed the conviction that in time the American Government would reciprocate Japan's efforts to solve the difficulty. The Foreign Minister added that the authorities were closely studying the enactment of an alien landownership law in Japan.

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, July 2.—The State Department attaches but little importance to the flag incident in Tokio which it declares to be the act of "irresponsible individuals." Confidence, however, is expressed that the Japanese Government will take a very early opportunity to reiterate repudiation of such incidents.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 2.—The man who cut the flag from the flag pole in the American Embassy compound has been arrested in Osaka. It is stated that he is a member of an anti-Bolshevik organisation.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 2.—The American Charge d'Affaires has been notified by the police that the flag removed from the Embassy flag-pole has been recovered, unharmed further than being cut from the canvas band. Two men were arrested last night as being accessory to the outrage. The arrest of the offender is expected shortly.

With the recovery of the flag and the official regrets already expressed by Baron Shidehara, the incident is generally considered closed.

Silver Coins For Soviet, 900 Fine

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 1.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Sir C. Oman (Conservative), Mr. Philip Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said that the silver coins being struck in the Royal Mint for the Soviet were .900 fine. No change was contemplated in the fineness of the British token of silver.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Foochow, July 2 (4.5, p.m.).—Squadron-Leader Maclaren arrived at Pagoda Anchorage this afternoon.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Foochow, July 2.—Squadron-Leader MacLaren landed without mishap under perfect weather conditions at 2.45 p.m. There were no accidents en route. He did not follow the contour of the coast but struck overland from Hunghwa Sound.

A reception to the aviators will be held this evening at the Pagoda Naval Club. Admiral Sah Chenping will preside.

SUNDAY PICTORIAL

The series of pictures by that brilliant American artist, Mrs. Bertha Lum, which have latterly been reproduced in The China Press Sunday Pictorial Section, have been a revelation of what can be accomplished in the realm of art by a vivid imagination and originality of conception, with both of which Mrs. Lum is richly endowed. The final group of pictures by this gifted woman with which we have been exclusively favored will be reproduced in the coming issue of the Pictorial and should not be missed. They are out of the beaten path of art pictures.

Chief Figures In News Of The Day

MISS RONNIE MAGIN & MRS. JOHN WANAMAKER, JR.
PANCHO VILLA & WILLIAM PHILLIPS

William Phillips, formerly Under-Secretary of State, has presented his credentials to King Albert in Brussels as new American Ambassador to Belgium. It is reported in Paris that Mrs. John Wanamaker, Jr., wife of a grandson of the late John Wanamaker, is soon to ask a divorce in French courts. She was formerly Miss Pauline Disston, of Philadelphia, and was married once before to James McVicar, of New York, whom she divorced. Pancho Villa, Filipino flyweight champion of the world, has been sued for $50,000 for alleged alienation of the affections of the wife of Ferman Dantes, a Filipino living in New York. Ronnie Magin, formerly famous actress, has entered suit in New York for $50,000 against John T. Davis, multi-millionaire, of Elkins, W. Va., and former Prohibition Director of Pennsylvania, charging breach of promise to marry.

RICSHA DEPOT IS ENDORSED BY COUNCIL HERE

Inspection Station To Be Constructed Is Decision

Endorsement of the Commissioner of Police's recommendation for the establishment of an inspection depot for the inspection of public ricshas and other vehicles has been given by the Municipal Council, according to today's Municipal Gazette.

It was expressed by the Commissioner of Police that the only means by which compliance with the Council's requirements could be insured was through this recommendation. Members of the Council in meeting unanimously endorsed this view and the Commissioner of Public Works has undertaken to expedite by all possible means the construction of the necessary building.

Empire Commerce Chambers Meet

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 1.—The Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire opened at the Guildhall today, presided over by Lord Derby.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, welcomed the 200 delegates. In his speech he denounced class hatred and urged the co-operation of Capital and Labor in a spirit of self-sacrifice to solve the problems of the Empire.

The Congress unanimously passed a resolution urging the re-establishment of penny postage throughout the Empire. A delegate from New Zealand said that the results of the restoration of the penny postage in New Zealand had been very satisfactory.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Resolutions were also passed urging the establishment of an Imperial wireless chain and urging Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce to devote unceased energy to promoting emigration within the Empire.

BANK ROBBERIES HAVE ATTENTION OF THE CONSUL

Alarm System Recommended By Commissioner Of Police

In view of recent bank robberies in the Settlement and the apparent waxing boldness of local Chinese bandits, the Municipal Council has been considering the situation.

"Following the recent hold-up at the Yung Yue Native Bank, the Native Bankers' Association requests that the 40 extra watchmen now being supplied be armed at the Council's expense, also that six armed Sikh troopers be provided to patrol the Native Bank area. On the grounds that policing by mounted men would be impracticable and useless, the Acting Commissioner does not recommend that the request be granted. Members consider that the raid in question was entirely due to the lack of protective measures taken by the Native Bank, and suggest that this point should be emphasised to the Native Bankers' Association. The Acting Commissioner states that foreign-style Chinese Banks are considering the installation of a central alarm system and he recommends that when any definite proposal is put forward it should receive the Council's careful consideration."

DEMOCRATS TAKE 30 BALLOTS, BUT FAIL TO AGREE ON CANDIDATE

McAdoo And Smith Still Have Most Of Votes, But Neither Can Poll Necessary Two Thirds; Davis Looms In Background

(Reuter's Service)

New York, July 1.—At the Democratic Convention the 16th ballot resulted as follows: Mr. McAdoo 478: Governor Smith 305½: Ex-Ambassador Davis 68.

There was excitement at the 20th ballot when Missouri deserted the McAdoo camp, casting its 36 votes for Ex-Ambassador Davis, making the position of the leaders: McAdoo 432, Smith 307½ and Davis 122.

The Convention went into recess after the 24th ballot, which did not show any material change compared with the 20th. Mr. McAdoo gained five and Mr. Davis seven votes.

(Reuter's American Service)

AEROS TO CARRY MAILS ACROSS U. S. EVERY DAY

New Transcontinental Air Service Started July First

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, July 1.—The new daily air mail service between New York and San Francisco was inaugurated this morning. One plane left the Pacific Coast, but two were required to carry the large mails from the Atlantic seaboard owing to the prevailing winds being from the west. A third aeroplane will join the westward aeroplanes at Chicago with a large mail. Each aeroplane is capable of carrying 600 pounds. The westward journey is scheduled to occupy 22 hours and the eastward journey 32.

AMERICANS WILL BUILD BRIDGES IN JAPAN, REPORT

Three Men Are Now Being Selected For Work On The River Sumida

Three American engineers will have charge of the construction of two large bridges which are to be erected across the Sumida River, Japan, by the Reconstruction Bureau, states the Japan Advertiser. The engineers are being selected now by the Foundation Company of New York.

By applying American methods in the construction of the two bridges, the Reconstruction Bureau expects to avoid the long delays which occurred in the building of the Shino Bridge across the Sumida several years ago. Five years were required in which to complete this work.

The Eitai and Kiyosu bridges, the two now to be constructed, are to rest on foundations sunk in the river bed by compressed air power, the most modern method of handling work of this nature.

The land readjustment program in which the Reconstruction Bureau is engaged at present is proceeding slowly but gradually the problems connected with this work are being solved. The first tangible evidence of progress in this connection will be the final report of the Land Readjustment Committee of the sixth district which is expected to be submitted at a meeting Saturday.

The sixth district comprising an area of 70,000 tsubo of which Surugadai-shita is the center, doubtless will be the first in which permission for the erection of permanent buildings will be given. This permission, it was stated at the Reconstruction Bureau yesterday, probably will be given in two weeks. As soon as the district committee's report is submitted, orders will be issued for the removal of those barracks which stand in the line of new streets. Permits for permanent structures will be issued at the same time.

The officials of the bureau still believe it will be possible to complete the readjustment program in the downtown district by early fall, and permanent construction work probably will begin in these districts not later than October.

COMMEND POLICE FOR BREAKING UP OUTLAWS' BAND

M. O. Springfield And Sikh And Chinese Officers Are Praised

Commendation for Assistant Commissioner of Police M. O. Springfield and for the Sikh and Chinese policemen who engaged in the running battle with armed desperadoes in the Bubbling Well district June 15 was given by Assessor Martin and Magistrate Loh of the Mixed Court yesterday, when one Chinese was ordered turned over to the Defense Commissioner for execution. A second man charged was dismissed. Two, it will be remembered, were slain in the fight with the police.

In giving judgment, the Court also commended the ricsha coolie who was instrumental in the capture of the one sentenced to execution.

"The Court commends for the consideration of the Commissioner of Police," the judgment states, "the splendid conduct of Assistant Commissioner of Police M. O. Springfield and the Sikh and Chinese police in breaking up this gang of robbers and is of the opinion that the ricsha coolie, Chang Te-cheng, should be rewarded for the assistance he rendered in effecting the arrest of the accused."

The affray began, it will be recalled, shortly after 7 o'clock on a Sunday evening, when a police search party met the bandits at the corner of Anuam and Hardoon Roads. One of the men immediately drew a pistol and started shooting and the robbers, four in number, dashed along Bubbling Well Road. The fire was returned and one man was hit and ran into a Chinese house, where he was later found mortally wounded. Mr. Springfield, who happened to be in the neighborhood, joined the chase, borrowed a revolver from a Sikh and brought down a second gunman just in front of the Burlington Hotel. He then chased the other two men toward Frenchtown. One ran through private grounds and made his escape. Mr. Springfield, first in a hastily commandeered broker's cart and then in a motor car, pursued the remaining thug. The latter dashed into a vacant piece of ground and then into a Chinese alleyway, where he was stopped by the ricsha coolie Chang and was bagged.

Channel Tunnel Scheme Dropped

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 2.—It is understood that at a meeting of the Committee for Imperial Defence yesterday, attended by all the members, in addition to the ex-Premiers Messrs. Baldwin, Lloyd George and Asquith, negatived the proposal to build a Channel tunnel.

American Ship Destroyed By Fire

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, July 3.—The American steamer, Sankaty, belonging to the New England Steamship Co., has been destroyed by fire at New Bedford due to an explosion. The Company's dock and freight shed were also burned. The loss is estimated at $350,000.

ANDREWS TELLS 'INSIDE STORY' OF EXPEDITION

Gobi Desert Explorer Speaks At Weekly Tiffin Of Rotary Club

The "inside story" of the expedition to the wilds of Mongolia and a vivid picture of the interesting experiences undergone by the explorers were given yesterday by Mr. Roy Chapman Andrews, noted archaeologist and naturalist and leader of the third Asiatic Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, before the Shanghai Rotary Club at the Astor House. A full attendance of Rotarians and friends as well as American judicial and consular officials greeted the guest of honor.

After describing the three classes of people, numbering about 4,000, who are as anxious as he is to find the "missing link" in Asia, Mr. Andrews asserted that the work of the expeditions for the last three years had been successful, but was found to be a larger problem than he had first thought. Accordingly, last year, he and his colleagues had to go to New York in the nature of stock-taking and to get additional finance for the enterprise. While the first expedition was financed entirely by New York, every state in the union is contributing towards the present one. Altogether G.$280,000 had been contributed and the contributors gave the money without any hope of material return. There were "no strings" attached to the contribution. It was for the benefit of science, out and out.

In describing the type of work which the expedition is expected to do, the speaker pointed out that the one big problem is to solve the theory advanced since 1900 by Prof. Osbourne of the American Museum of Natural History that Central Asia was the home of prehistoric human activities. In 1921, the first expedition set out in search for evidence to substantiate the theory. Mongolia was selected for the field of exploitation, because it was the oldest dry land that history could record and the Garden of Eden for the ancestors of the animal world. It was the largest expedition that has ever been attempted in such work. Fifteen scientists participated and 25 others, including two Chinese. Elaborate preparations were made to avoid dangers and other difficulties.

The expedition was encouraged with success almost as soon as it reached the Gobi desert. One of the members, Mr. George Olson, discovered three dinosaur eggs exposed in the sand. At first the other members laughed at him. But, upon close examination it was found that the rocks in which the eggs had been petrified, had been exposed because this part of the sandy wilds had been used for a road which had worn off the surface and exposed a stratum of subterranean rocks. Further digging into the rocks disclosed the skeleton of a youthful dinosaur and several other eggs in which the form of embryo dinosaurs were apparent. The formation showed that the eggs must have been laid there at least 10,000,000 years ago. To the archaeologist, the whole thing read like a book. The region had some attraction and Madame Dinosaur came to hatch her eggs. But there was a sand storm and the eggs were buried. The pressure of the mineral forced the liquid out and the space was filled by the fine Gobi dust, which petrified during the millions of years that followed.

The explorer concluded with a glowing tribute to the Chinese and the government for the assistance that they are giving in the matter and stated that the expedition will present a duplicate collection of their finds to the Geological Museum of Peking.

A children's army of twenty million savers is a vision that will soon draw mutual savings bankers to New York from all parts of the country. They hope to make the idea of saving so attractive that every child in the nation will want a bank account. In the last few years the growth of savings among children has increased until youngsters under 15 now represent a considerable percentage of all bank depositors. Their accounts are tiny on the average, but in the aggregate these accounts amount to a large total.

New York savings bankers are making extensive plans to entertain their colleagues when they gather here for a convention. This three-day conference will be the first their organisation has held in New York. The high point of the gathering will be marked by an assembly of three thousand children in Carnegie Hall when these young savers will present a tableau, showing just how much they enjoy depositing their pennies. The children will be drawn from the New York schools and from cities throughout the East. Each one must have a bank account in order to attend.

"I suppose that every grown man and woman understands that the only way to independence for most of us is by means of consistent saving," said William E. Knox, President of the Bowery Savings Bank; "but we are just beginning to understand the possibilities of saving instruction for school children. It is a somewhat remarkable fact, when we stop to consider the matter, that our educational system never has dealt in any comprehensive way with the most important thing in life, from a material standpoint. That means money, of course. Certainly it is a fine thing to instill in young minds all of the theoretical learning which helps to make life worth while. But it seems equally apparent to me that there can be no enjoyment of life unless we free ourselves of the cares which lack of money engenders. So the nation's mutual savings bankers are anxious to give the next generation and those which come afterward the best possible chance for happiness. We have no intention of training these young minds to hoard money, but we believe that it is highly essential they should have an understanding of what money means.

"All of us know how easy it is to accumulate a reasonable capital by dint of saving a little at a time and permitting it to grow of its own force. It is just that thought which we hope to implant in the consciousness of our school children. Most of us who belong to an older generation never realised the value of money until we were well along in life. Usually the knowledge came to us through hard circumstances. It has been said that the majority of men never understand the value of money until they have married. Maybe that is true of our women folk as well. Let us suppose that on both sides the thought of saving a part of our earnings had become virtually a habit in younger years. I am certain that if we could all start life from that viewpoint we would get along much easier and escape some of the hard knocks which the years bring with them.

"A great many grown-ups who endeavor to save start with the misapprehension that it is a sad sort of duty which they must perform. On the contrary, I do not know of any satisfaction which quite equals that of seeing steadily mounting bank balance in a pass book. This balance is the definite assurance that our dreams are coming true that our ambition is being realised. And surely life without ambition and achievement is but a poor sort of thing. It is this conception which has led the mutual savings bankers to undertake the organisation of a children's army of 20,000,000 savers. I suppose those figures may seem a little staggering at first glance, but they really are not when we come to analyse them. In a nation of more than 100,000,000 people we have no less than 20,000,000 children whose minds are in the formative stage and who we believe should absorb the idea that independence depends so largely upon the individual's ability to care for himself.

"We look forward to the time when saying shall become a part of instruction in every kind of a school which America maintains. We have started a national contest among teachers all over the country for their ideas as to the best methods of teaching saving and personal economy. A great many highly valuable suggestions have been made, and when final awards take place we expect to devise from these plans a system of saving instruction that should go far to make the next generation the most prosperous ever reared in this country."

Russ Concession At Hankow Back In Chinese Hands

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, July 1.—The Central China Post says that the return of the Russian concession to the Chinese was effected today, apparently in a somewhat half-hearted manner, by hoisting the Chinese flag over the municipal buildings and the police station and by the decoration of police helmets with a new Chinese heraldic device in place of the familiar Russian cockade.

The Chinese authorities, for some reason or other, were obviously desirous of avoiding attracting attention to the change, and so surreptitiously was it done that quite a number of municipal employes were not aware that they were working under a new banner.

The change, the paper declares, is likely to be remembered by Chinese and foreigners alike as being a day of importance in the annals of Hankow.

FUKIEN IS MORE DISTRACTED THAN EVER BY CHANGES

Interesting Developments Are Expected In Near Future

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 29.—Whatever may have been the intention, the political changes recently made in Fukien seem to have produced the reverse of harmony and indeed to have added to the distractions of the province. General Chou Yen-jen, who was recently appointed to succeed General Sun Chuang-fang as Tuli, on the latter's appointment to be Border Commissioner of Fukien and Kwangtung, arrived in Foochow on June 14 and proceeded to take up his residence at one of the strategic points there. It was expected that the new Tuli would move into the yamen which the accommodating General Sun had vacated in readiness for him but General Chou, as soon as he found that the yamen was surrounded by General Sun's troops, decided to remain where he was pending the arrival of his main body. Up to the end of last week neither Chou nor Sun had taken up his new post and the latter showed no inclination to leave Foochow, but rather to establish permanent headquarters there.

The movements and inclinations of Admiral Tu Hsi-knei, whose marines occupy the vicinity of Foochow are doubtful, but the fact of his staying on in Foochow seems to suggest that he is anxious to give moral support to General Sun. That the latter is by no means satisfied with the possibilities of his new appointment as Border Commissioner is indicated by the fact that he has demanded a military conference with a view to divesting General Chou of the civil power conferred upon him by virtue of his office as Tuli. He seems anxious not to leave behind him in office a Tuli capable of exercising the same wide powers which he himself enjoyed, and it may may be taken for granted, on the other hand, that General Chou has not for nothing given up his lucrative post at Yenping. Interesting developments may therefore be expected.

Cotton Spinning Conditions Worse

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 1.—In the course of a speech at Manchester today Sir Charles Macara said that the position with regard to both American and Egyptian cotton-spinning and manufacturing, instead of improving, was becoming rapidly worse. The present short-time movement had proved insufficient to meet the situation.

Daily Delivery of The China Press

To Our Regular Subscribers

We have done all we could to deliver THE CHINA PRESS at your door in time for you to read it in bed before breakfast, if you wish; but to produce the highest efficiency and most regular service we feel that your co-operation is needed.

Occasionally one of our delivery coolies is forgetful or slack, and someone's morning paper is missing that day; or it is thrown down in the garden and spoilt by the rain. Whenever such cases are reported we take immediate steps to rectify the error and to discourage the offender from repeating it. But some cases, we feel sure, remain unreported, and we are asking you, if you have any cause for complaint, to fill up the printed form below and send it along to the Business Manager.

CHINA REFUGEE MATTER IS UP BEFORE COUNCIL

Chairman Of Municipal Body Replies To Note From Waichiaopu

The residence of Chinese political refugees in the Settlement here is the subject of correspondence in today's Municipal Gazette, a letter from Mr. S. Fessenden, chairman of the Council, giving assurance that the Municipal authorities are ready and willing at all times to co-operate with the Chinese Government in the controlling of any unruly elements within the Settlement boundaries, upon receipt of information as will enable the necessary action.

The text of the letter is as follows:

June 20, 1924.

Sir,—I have the honor to refer to your letter of April 12, forwarding a despatch from the Dean of the Diplomatic Body in Peking giving cover to a note from the Waichiaopu on the subject of Chinese refugees in the Foreign Settlement.

"The Council notes that it has been reported to the Chinese Government that certain persons are in hiding in the Foreign Settlements and Concessions whose arrest has been ordered by the Central Government, and who make it their business to foment local disaffection and plot to raise disturbances in the Provinces.

"The Council further notes that the High Provincial Authorities have been requested to take measures to deal with such evil doers in the areas under their control, but that, as it is not possible for them to control persons who may take refuge in the Foreign Settlements, the Diplomatic Body is requested to arrange for the requisite measures to be taken in regard to such conspiracies in the Settlements and to extradite such guilty persons in order that they may receive suitable punishment.

"I have the honor to state that the Council is ever mindful of the fact that the Chinese Government has courteously set aside the Foreign Settlements as a place in which foreigners should reside and conduct their trade, and Chinese merchants and others have always been welcome to the Settlement when they come in peace and good amity and in the furtherance of such trade, but not otherwise. It has therefore been the policy of the Settlement in the past, and that policy will be continued, of expelling from the Settlement malefactors of every description and persons plotting secretly or wellbeing of the Chinese Government.

"To this end, therefore, and apart from the established procedure for dealing with convicted malefactors, the Council declares itself ready and willing at all times to co-operate with the Chinese Government in controlling such unruly elements of the Chinese population, as may seek refuge within the Settlement and, upon receipt of such information as will enable the Council to take the necessary action, such persons in the future, as in the past, shall be denied the hospitality of the Settlement, and shall be expelled, extradited or otherwise dealt with as the circumstances of the case may dictate.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
S. Fessenden,
Chairman.

N. U. Comm. G. de' Rossi,
Consul-General for Italy
and Senior Consul."

BOBBED-HAIRED BANDIT HAS LOYAL SUITOR

LEONA SHEEHAN & R.E. STEPHEN

Leona Sheehan, pretty bobbed-haired Boston girl, under arrest there on the charge of holding up and robbing a Harvard student, is still in jail, though her mail accomplice is freed on bail. She has a stanch advocate, however, in Robert Edgar Stephens, engineer of the Boston Art Club, who declares he stands ready to marry her as soon as she is freed—if she says "yes."

Scores Attend Opening Of Watson's New Factory

Scores of foreign and Chinese men and women took occasion yesterday of the formal opening of the new factory of Messrs. Watson's Mineral Water Factory on Wayside Road to inspect the new premises and partake of the hospitality of the genial hosts.

Mr. R. B. Wood, manager of the factory acted as host and showed the many guests through the plant, explaining the processes involved in bottling the various products of the company.

One of the first departments to be visted was the sterilising department. All water used in the manufacture of the company's products is first passed through Berkfeldt filters and then sterilised by violet rays so as to insure its cleanliness. Adjacent to the sterilising department is a large storeroom where the company's stocks of sugar, essences, etc., are kept. The syrup room is equipped with fourteen earthenware tanks to contain the syrups which are mixed by mechanical mixers. The syrup is brought to the various tanks through pipes—being filtered en route. Other pipes connect the tanks with the filling room.

The plant is equipped with a large boiler which sterilises all water used in bottle washing. The distilled water used in manufacturing the company's products comes from an artesian well 305 feet deep.

Visitors to the plant yesterday were permitted to witness the processes involved in the manufacture of the various waters, starting with the cleaning of the bottles. The bottles when first received are placed in racks in large tanks, the frames of which revolve so that all bottles are submerged repeatedly and easily reached. Each bottle passes through three such tanks, being scrubbed and rinsed each time. Then it comes to workers who place mechanical revolving brushes inside, thus thoroughly cleansing the inside of the receptacle. The cleaning process is finished when the bottles are rinsed with sterilised water and made ready for filling.

In the filling department the bottles are first held under a machine which injects into them a definite amount of syrup, then they pass to a filling machine which adds water charged with carbonic acid gas, after which they are corked and go on to the labeller. Filled, labelled and corked they are placed in cases and are ready for distribution.

Each filling machine in the new plant has a capacity of 100 dozen per hour. At the present time there are four such machines and two more are to be added shortly.

The new factory represents an investment of Tls. 50,000.

The company has also acquired adjacent land which will permit of a considerable expansion and with its growing business expects to enlarge the plant.

At the reception yesterday morning refreshments were served in a temporarily arranged roof garden which would make a strong appeal if thrown open here during the summer months, and the Winter Garden orchestra entertained with a program of delightful numbers. In the afternoon a large number of Chinese dealers and their friends attended the opening. There were also a large number of handsome silver shields, Chinese congratuatory scrolls and inscriptions and huge bundles of flowers presented by clients and friends of the company.

Among the first to sign the book of visitors of the new factory were Sir Skinner Turner, of the British Supreme Court, the Hon. Milton D. Purdy, Judge of the United States Court for China, and Dean C. J. P. Symons. A great number of other prominent Shanghailanders were on hand at the opening and offered congratulations on the establishment of the new plant.

Tasty sandwiches and other refreshments were served on the roof-shedded roof by the Winter Garden, Shepherd's Cafe, Gande, Price and Garner, Quelch.

Labor Conference Suggests Anthrax Prevention Plan

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, July 1.—The Anthrax Committee of the International Labor Conference has drawn up a report recommending the disinfection of hair, horns and hoofs for industrial purposes, without mentioning hair and wool used for textiles. A minority report, which, it is understood, is supported by the British delegation, opposes the omission.

Comparison

It is obvious that where claims are made, comparison is inevitable. Comparison of the NEW Columbia Grafonola with ordinary gramophones has given it a place in music that no other gramophone has attained in so short a space of time. Comparison of the "NEW PROCESS" Records (without Scratch) with ordinary records reveals all the deficiencies of the latter.

To hear either one is to enjoy but one-half of a great achievement. To hear them in combination is to experience the sensation of a new experience. But to hear them in comparison with ordinary gramophones is to understand the enthusiasm of master musicians and music-lovers alike.

Baseball Park Scene Of Wedding, With Guests Hoping Bride Would Choke

Hudford Taylor One Of Central Figures In Diamond Romance That Costs Gallopers Chance To Even Score With Japanese

By Westa

The baseball field at the Race Course was the scene of a wedding yesterday, and strange to relate, all the guests hoped that the bride would choke on her first batch of biscuits.

The principals in this unique ceremony were Mr. Hudford Taylor, one of the city's popular and respected young men, and Miss Thirdbase, whose gown was of canvas, with leather trimmings. She wasn't much to look at, to say the least, but the groom proved his gameness by sticking very close to her side, despite the fact that all the guests were handing her the razberry. Mal Maloney, who was best man, said that in all his social experience he had never looked on a less attractive bride, and made no bones about concealing his contempt for her.

"I hope that hatchet faced huzzy skids into the side of a building," said Mal.

The wedding ceremony was staged in the eighth inning of the ball game between the Gallopers and the Manshus. In that session the groom led off with a nice clout to centerfield, advanced to second on an out, and proceeded to the hot corner, church when the Japanese second sacker juggled Jawn Scott's roller.

Verne Claire, the next man up, lifted a tall fly to centerfield whereupon the guests looked for Hudford to come tearing in with the one run needed to even the count.

They looked in vain, however, for the susceptible Hudford had been snared, hook, line and sinker, by Miss Thirdbase, and refused to leave her home until the knot was tied.

"Romance," said Herby Gallop afterward, "is all right in its place, but it doesn't mix with baseball. Besides, what he sees in that battle axe is a mystery to me."

It was a good ball game up to then, but it would have been much better if Hudford hadn't become suddenly sentimental. The Japanese scored two runs in the second frame, which session Griffith started by walking Kishi, the first man up. Iwata sacrificed him neatly and after Bullard had abolished Aboshi Tamura got on by grace of Bill Howland's more or less excusable bobble on the catcher's rather torrid grounder. Hikida then scored Kishi with a nice single, but was himself snuffed out when he tried to steal, Wall to Maloney to Bullard. Sanada followed with another single, scoring the Manshu backstopper with their second and final counter.

Shanghai got one in the third stanza on a twobase blow by Griffith and scored on an error by the visiting first baseman.

That was all we got, despite numerous threats; but our gang had what looked to everybody but Hudford like a good chance to even things in the eighth. Hudford answered about a million queries as to why he didn't run when Claire's fly was caught by saying that he didn't think he could make it. Verne's fly didn't go very far out, it is true, and yet it did look like Tay should have taken the chance. Mal, who was on the coaching line, yelled at him to run, but Tay decided otherwise. Buck Taylor then struck out and that finished it.

The Gallopers were very unlucky yesterday, in that nearly every time they hit the ball, which was frequently enough, they hit it right into the waiting hands of the opposition. In addition the Japanese outfielders gave an exhibition that was astonishing, particularly Masuda, their center fielder. That young man speared five very difficult ones during the afternoon, one of which, from Claire's bat, was ticketed for Minghong.

CATCHER STARS

One of the high spots in the battle, from a fielding standpoint, was a grab by Tamura, the Japanese catcher, of a foul from Maloney's bat in the sixth. Kingman led off with a single in that frame and Mal, in trying to sacrifice, lifted a foul that barely cleared the noble dome of Obie the Ump. Tamura turned, and with a catlike spring was under the ball when it came down. An instant later he parked himself under a tall foul that Claire lifted, and to complete his usefulness in that inning he whipped the ball to second in time to choke off Buck Taylor, who, running for Kingman, attempted to steal.

Griffith, the sailor, pitcher for Herby's crew and did very well. The Japanese hit him rather freely and in spots, but he tightened when the situation threatened. Buck Taylor chocked off a run in the eighth by a peg from the deadhead fringe in left that was a pip. Masuda had singled and when Sakamoto lashed out a lusty two bagger to Buck's territory it looked like another marker for them. Buck quickly retrieved the ball, however, and shot it to Griffith who relayed to Wall in time to head off the center fielder. Under the ground rule in force yesterday a ball hit into the crowd had to be returned to the pitcher's box before it could be relayed, the runner being privileged to proceed as far as possible while all this was going on. The coordination of Buck, Griff and Wall, therefore, was very smooth and neat.

MLLE. LENGLEN TO RETIRE FROM TENNIS TOURNEY

French Star To Take No Further Part In Wimbledon Play

(Reuter's Service)

Wimbledon, July 1.—It is authoritatively stated that Mlle Lenglen will take no further part in the Lawn Tennis Championships under the doctor's orders.

Vincent Richards, who was the favourite, was absolutely volleyed out of the championship. The volatile Borotra followed up his services, covered the net flashed lightning returns to Richards' services and smashed and volleyed the latter's forceful drives. His wonderful perception and remarkable speed left Richards impotent. Borotra dispossessed Richards of the championship, which was generally regarded as his for the playing. Richards was nonplussed by the Frenchman's tactics, which neutralised his driving powers and kept him at the pathetic task of lobbing back. The American won four of the first games, but Borotra won the next five for the set. In the second set the Frenchman lost many aces at the net. In the third and fourth sets he won eight games running, winning a love set and leading 4 games to 0 in the fourth set. He kept the American running by placing skilfully in the side-line corners. He was dominant and purposeful and the aggressor to the end.

Raymond's defeat of Washburn was a wonderful performance. Raymond was limping from an injured ankle, sustained in the Davis Cup ties.

Williams's defeat of Kingscote was due to the American's deadly drives into the baseline corners.

In the fourth round of the Ladies' Doubles Miss Goss and Mrs. Jessup beat Mrs. Bouverie and Mrs. Hiell 6-2, 2-6, 9-7.

In the third round the Americans Mrs. Wightman and Miss Wills beat Miss Austin and Miss Colyer 6-2, 6-4. Mrs. Lamber Chambers and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron and the Americans, Miss Goss and Mrs. Jessup, enter the semi-final round.

In the third round of the Mixed Doubles Gilbert and Miss McKane beat Condon and Mrs. Mallory 6-3, 6-2. Lamb and Miss Harvey beat Wheatley and Miss Colyer 3-6, 6-2, 6-2. Hunter and Miss Scharman beat J. Park and Mrs. Middleton 6-4, 2-6, 6-1. O. Turnbull and Mrs. Craddock beat Richards and Miss Jessup 6-3, 4-6, 6-1.

(Reuter's Service)

Wimbledon, July 1.—The weather at Wimbledon today was fine, though cooler than the previous day. The attendance was small.

The first center court match was the fifth-round meeting of the American, Williams and the last-remaining British competitor, Colonel Kingscote. Williams entered the semi-final, eliminating Kingscote by 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

The South African, Raymond, entered the semi-final by defeating the American, Washburn, 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, 1-6, 6-4 in the fifth round.

Borotra is the second French semi-finalist, the other being Lacoste. He defeated the American, Richards, in the fifth round, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

In the second round of the Mixed Doubles, Gilbert and Miss McKane beat Lycett and Miss Ryan, the holders, 6-4, 1-6, 8-6.

Covent Garden Rich In Historic Associations

New Company In London Seeks To Acquire Universally Known Site

(By Our Own Correspondent)

London, May 28.—Of all the changes that have passed over London during the course of the last two centuries none, perhaps, more remarkable than the way in which the tide of wealth and fashion has steadily migrated westward.

This fact is brought to mind by the recent formation of a company entitled Beecham Estates and Pills Limited which has as part object the acquisition of certain properties including the universally known Covent Garden Market.

In the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries, Covent Garden was the daily meeting place of all the men of wit and fashion in the town. Not in Bond Street but in Bow Street were the gallants of that time were wont to assemble, and the site now occupied by the Police Court was then the dwelling place of Edmund Waller, the courtly poet of the Restoration.

So closely identified was the district with the practices of smart society that Mrs. Bracegirdle, the actress, began an epilogue of one of Dryden's plays with the lines:

I've had today a dozen billet-doux
From fops and wits, and cits and Bow Street beaux.

There are frequent references to the Piazza in the plays of Congreve. When one of the characters enquires of Lucy in "The Old Batchelor" where her master is to be found, she replies "He'll be in the Piazza presently." The Piazza at that time was the leading center of social life and allusions to it in the literature of the period are frequent. Alas, only a small portion of it is now left standing.

THE SPREAD EAGLE

Then there was the Spread Eagle, one of the most famous chocolate houses of London, where men of affairs were in the habit of meeting to partake of a dish of chocolate and to read the news of the day. The district is rich in literary associations. It was the home for many years of Henry Fielding, novelist and Bow Street Magistrate.

In those days the Market was apparently open to a certain amount of criticism. "It must be owned" writes a contemporary novelist, "that Covent Garden affords some good fruit: which, however, is always engrossed by a few individuals of overgrown fortune, at an exorbitant price; so that little else than the refuse of the Market falls to the share of the community; and that is distributed by such filthy hands, as I cannot look at without loathing."

A slightly more appreciative estimate of Covent Garden Market is given by Thackeray, who used frequently to stay at the "Bedford" near by. He describes it as "a common center into which Nature showers her choicest gifts, and where the kingly fruits of the earth nearly choke the narrow thoroughfares." It should be remembered that a whole century divides Thackeray from Fielding.

KNOWN EVERYWHERE

There is probably no district in London so rich in historic associations as Covent Garden. Its Opera house and its Market are known throughout the world while its Church can claim to be of almost equal interest. St. Paul's, Covent Garden, is not perhaps one of the principal architectural glories of London. "though the grass covered close through which it is approached is a welcome oasis of quietude in the midst of "screaming London's central roar."

The first church that stood on this site was built from the designs of Inigo Jones on the instructions of the Earl of Bedford. There is a story that the Earl told the architect that he wished to have as plain and convenient a structure as possible, and but little better than a barn, and that Jones informed the Earl in reply that he would build him the handsomest barn in England.

In 1795 the carelessness of some plumbers who were engaged at work upon the roof resulted in "the handsomest barn in England" being burned to the ground. A contemporary writer, describing the conflagration, says: "When the flames were at their height, the portico and many pillars made a grand scene, projected before a background of liquid fire, which raged with so much uncontrolled fury, that not a fragment of wood, in or near the walls, escaped destruction."

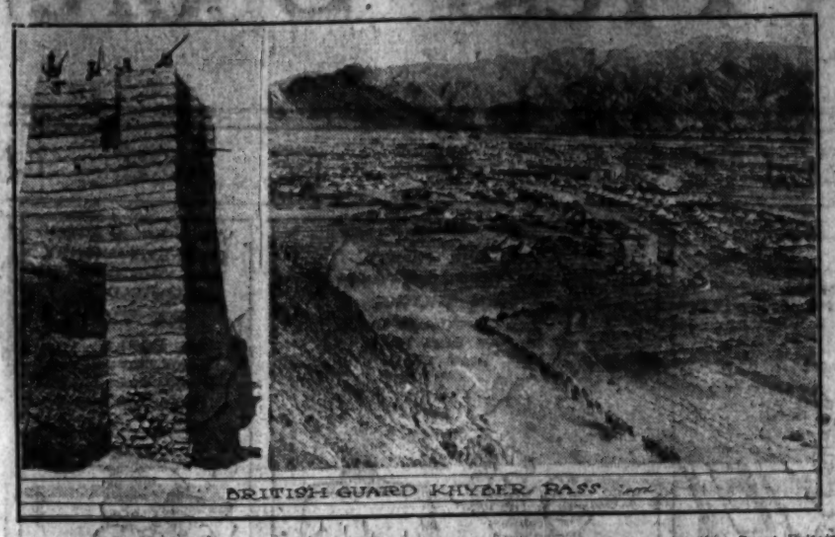
The new church was built upon the model of its predecessor, the portico being almost an exact replica of that which had been remodelled by the parishioners in 1729 "out of regard to the memory of the celebrated Inigo Jones and to prevent our country being exposed for their ignorance."

THEATRICAL DISTRICT

Covent Garden is proverbially a theatrical district, and it is fitting that many actors should have found their last resting place in Covent Garden's only church. Among the famous folk of the stage who were buried in St. Paul's are Eastcourt, perhaps the greatest mimic of his time, Edwin Macklin King, and Joe Haynes, of Drury Lane.

Samuel Butler, the poet, was afforded a place of rest in the Church itself. Finally, the names of Sir Peter Lely, who has immortalised on canvas so many of the frail beauties of the Court of Charles II, Grinling Gibbons, the sculptor and Dr. Arne, the musician must be added to those whose place of interment is to be found either in the church or in the churchyard.

BRITISH ARE ON GUARD IN KHYBER PASS.



BRITISH GUARD KHYBER PASS

Despite diplomatic denials by the British Foreign Office of reports from Moscow that Great Britain is strengthening her forces on the Afghanistan frontiers and might even support an anti-revolutionary invasion to restore the former Emir, these recent pictures of Khyber Pass, the Indian entrance into Afghanistan, seem to bear out the Russian version. The main British fear, it is said, is that Bolshevik Russia will invade India. This armed camp in the pass proves that Britain is maintaining large forces there, while blockhouses have been constructed along the entire frontier. India's loyal Sepoys form a large part of the garrison.

Gives Details Of Shooting Of Late Mr. J. R. Cunningham

The prerarious situation of the foreign missionaries as well as the Chinese civilian population in the besieged city of Kweilin is graphically described, as is also the death of the late Mr. J. R. Cunningham, in a letter from Mr. W. H. Oldfield to the Hankow department of the Christian and Missionary Alliance and published in the Central China Morning Post.

The letter, dated at Kweilin April 24, reads as follows:

"You will learn from my other letters that the city of Kweilin has been besieged now for 13 days and fighting has been carried on day and night. Huge shells scream as they fly across the city, and cause confusion where they land and burst. Machine guns and automatics vie with each other almost daily in seeing which can pour out death the faster, while rifle fire can be heard on every hand. Bullets are flying all over and civilians are being killed and wounded all the time. No place is safe. A girl sitting on the sheltered side of the Baptist school had her brains knocked out by a large shell, while two boys in the boy's school were struck by a bullet. The one boy had only a flesh wound, but the bullet entered the head of the second boy and is there yet. A bullet came through the side of Dr. Newshaw's house and fell on the bed as Brother Cunningham was washing his hands, and the bed on which I was lying was struck with a bullet, although I was under the verandah at the time. Fires too are forming part of the siege and huge blazes take place almost nightly.

SHOT WHILE SUPERVISING

"Early last week, Brother Cunningham and I settled on the position for the new chapel building. The work of laying the foundation was started and a few men put to work. This gave Brother Cunningham great pleasure as it seemed that his year-long dream was about to be fulfilled. The work preceeded. Mr. Cunningham and I going over now and then to look after the workmen. Some bullets had fallen in the yard before, but bullets had also come through the roofs and sides of the buildings too, and so it seemed that one place was as safe as another. Consequently the five workmen continued their work. On Saturday afternoon Brother Cunningham and I were in my room talking over the conditions and needs of the work, and then he went over to see the workmen.

"He had only been gone a few minutes when a workman came to the door and hastily called that Brother Cunningham had been shot. I ran over, and on the way met Mrs. Lumpp who was also coming to call me. I found Brother Cunningham lying on his back on the sand with eyes half closed and lips moving slightly. Brother Lumpp had reached him first and thought that he had fallen down in a faint as we had not heard any bullets coming in, but when Brother Lumpp went to move his head the blood spurted from a small hole at the back of his left ear. We felt Brother Cunningham's pulse and it was still beating strongly, but it stopped in a few moments. We at once sent for Dr. Mewshaw and Dr. Smith, and while waiting for them beat down beside Brother Cunningham and held his hands and wiped his brow with a damp cloth.

"Mrs. Cunningham was on the scene immediately but Brother Cunningham never rallied, did not speak to anyone or utter the slightest moan. His death was instantaneous. He never knew what hit him. His colour changed immediately and when the Doctors came they could do nothing. We then lifted him on to a canvas cot and carried him over to the house. He looked so contented and happy. There was no trace of pain or disappointment, but a happy expression covered his face as if he had already entered into that joy which awaits the faithful saints.

"All the missionaries (men) were soon on the scene and helped in every possible way, and Mrs. Bacon (doctor) came down and stayed with Mrs. Cunningham over night.

"A coffin was purchased that same night and by midnight we had it lined and the body laid to rest on the verandah. Yesterday after the morning service, at which I spoke, the Christians and children from the Boys' and Girls' Schools were invited over to have one last look at the face of their departed pastor. Brother Cunningham still looked beautiful and the floral tributes that had been sent by both Chinese and foreign friends added beauty to the scene. Later the coffin was sealed and I am having it lacquered and will keep it just where it is until the siege is lifted, and then we will have the funeral service.

"We have not had any mail for a long time, and so do not know what is occurring at other places, and we fear that no mails leaving the city, but we write anyway, and hope some of it will eventually get through the lines."

Price Of Rubber Is Lowest In 2 Years, State Authorities

Statistical Position Good But Demand Governs Quotations

New York, June 9.—Prices for crude rubber this last week dropped to the lowest levels in about two years. This decline, according to trade authorities, occurred in face of general improvement in the statistical position of the industry. It is explained, however, that the decline was as inevitable as the rise from the low levels of two years ago. Although the statistical position of the industry is good, the demand for the product is what governs the movement of prices. According to one authority the statistical position may continue to improve for two years, but still be accompanied by lower prices.

The rise in rubber prices which started about two years ago resulted in the adoption of a plan on the part of the British to restrict the exportation of crude rubber to foreign countries. Commenting upon the immediate effects of this restriction plan and the aftermath, one British authority says:

"Throughout the second half of 1922 the absorption of the United States was jumping by leaps and bounds. The United States imports rose to 160,428 tons, against 113,070 tons in the corresponding period in 1921. When 1923 opened it was clear that unless an unforeseen set back occurred, the United States absorbing power was going to show a big increase over the corresponding period of 1922, when consumption was at a low ebb.

"Throughout the whole period it was forecast that the outlook for the industry was bright. The peak of absorption was reached in June, 1923. The natural rise, which was inevitable, was forced and accentuated by the adoption of the Stevenson restriction scheme. United States buyers became unnecessarily alarmed at the prospect and bought largely under imaginary fears of the effects of the restriction on the supply side. A big wave of speculation took place. Rubber directors bought rubber, stock-brokers on the London Stock Exchange and in Mincing Lane bought rubber, many individuals bought rubber, while many producers held up rubber. The few wise directors who recognised the artificial position which was being created were unpopular in board rooms, anathematised by prominent shareholders, by produce brokers, by Stock Exchange interests and by the press. And this artificial condition prevailed for some months. Further foolish buying occurred later in anticipation of a big United States demand which has failed to mature."

It was further pointed out that in an effort to stimulate the rise in the price for rubber products figures were published showing the larger number of motor cars produced in this country, and as a result of this the deduction was made that the price of rubber should therefore advance. But, it is stated, many interests overlooked the fact that the introduction of cord tires largely reduced the tire consumption per car. No predictions are made as to the probable consumption in connection with the latest balloon tire. This tire, it is argued, is still in the experimental stage and manufacturers hesitate to predict that it will bring about big changes in the industry. It is not expected that these manufacturers will stock up heavily with rubber.

While rubber interests in general express hope that prices will improve in the second half of the current year, they say that it is futile to base opinions upon an increase in automobile production without taking into consideration the longer life of the tires now being produced. Consumption for the current year to date, it is estimated, is about 25 percent less than that for the corresponding period last year.

It is said that all "estimates as to consumption for the present season are mere blind guesses in the dark, and worse than useless unless illumined by a knowledge of the factors which influence the situation at the present time or may do so in the immediate future. The settlement of the reparations problem is a factor of supreme importance."

ENGLAND BEATS SOUTH AFRICANS IN SECOND TEST

Home Players Vanquish Visitors By Inning And 18 Runs

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 1.—England beat South Africa in the Second Test Match by an innings and 18 runs.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 1.—At Brighton, Essex beat Cambridge University by 88 runs. Sussex made 260 and 239 and Cambridge 161 and 280.

At Chesterfield Leicestershire beat Derbyshire by 7 wickets. Derby made 328 (Hutchinson 143) and 69 (Geary taking 5 wickets for 19). Leicester made 276 and 122 for 3 wickets. The match was for Morkin's Benefit.

At Hull Yorkshire beat Essex on the 1st innings. Yorkshire made 299 (Douglas taking 6 wickets for 97) and 111 (Douglas 5 wickets for 49). Essex made 248 and 63 for 6 wickets.

At Southampton Hampshire beat Surrey by one wicket. Surrey made 208 and 240 (Sandham 94). Hampshire made 312 (Tennyson 75) and 135 for 9 wickets (Tennyson 64). The match was Newman's benefit.

At Birmingham Warwickshire beat Kent by 8 wickets. Kent made 275 (Bryan 124) and 99 (Howell 5 wickets for 42). Warwick made 226 and 187 for 2 wickets (Santall 90 not out).

At Manchester Lancashire beat Notts on the 1st innings. Notts made 247 and 221 for 3 wickets, declared. Lancashire made 288 (Makepeace 116) and 80 for 2 wickets.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 1.—One thousand people were present in glorious weather at the opening of the third day's play in the Test Match. The wicket was wearing well. Deane and Commaille made a very quiet start. They were tempted in every way, but remained very solid. It was 166 minutes before the century appeared Deane's wicket fell to Hearne when he had reached 24, and Commaille's leg was in front of a ball from Tyldesley at 37. Nourse also suffered a like fate to Commaille to a ball from Gilligan. Susskind and Taylor were in partnership at the lunch interval, Susskind with 23 and Taylor with 8. The score was 116 for 3 wickets.

After lunch the crowd increased to 4,000. The South Africans made a game attempt to save an innings defeat, but their efforts were frustrated by a new ball, which the bowlers found to their liking. Susskind gave the outstanding performance and put up a magnificent defense. He was l. b. w. to Tyldesley at 53. Catterall, who then came in, was too confident and eventually fell to the wily Tyldesley at 45. The remaining wickets fell for few runs. The English bowling was good and their fielding very keen and occasionally brilliant. The South Africans were all out at five o'clock for 240. England thus winning by an innings and 18 runs. By a coincidence, this is the same margin of defeat in the first test.

Collegians Play For Spaulding Cup

The Spaulding Tennis Cup Tournament started on Wednesday morning. Only students from St. John's, Fuh Tan and Shanghai College appeared. Fuh Tan players played those from St. John's and lost to St. John's in both the singles and the doubles. Today the players from St. John's will meet Chen Nai Shing and Hwang Bo Lien in both singles and doubles. Unless players from the other schools appear early at Shanghai College today, the match between Shanghai College and St. John's will decide the winner of the Spaulding Cup.

Chinese Porcelain Brings £22,304

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 1.—A sum of £22,304 was realised at Christie's today by the sale of a portion of the Benson collection of early Chinese porcelain. A pair of bottles of the Ming period were sold for 6,400 guineas and another of the same period for 4,100 guineas.

SPIRIT MEETINGS WILL END TODAY IN CHINESE CITY

It is announced that the meetings of the Five Religions Association and the Shanghai Spiritualist Society, which have been held in the Mandarin Gardens, Chinese City, for the past week, will be continued today, when a final meeting will be held.

Yesterday, it was reported, messages were received from the famous evangelist Moody, being transcribed by the planchette in the sand bed prepared at the temple. Further messages are expected to be received today, those in charge of the meetings state. Great crowds of Chinese and foreigners continue to visit the gardens.

Between The Yangtse And The Hwai

An Interesting Tour Of The "No Of The River" Country Where Dwell The "Yellow Earth Legs"

Written for The China Press by ELLIOTT I. OSGOOD

Across the Yangtse River from Nanking, in eastern Anhwei, is a block of country called "North-of-the-River." In former days the people occupying this particular stretch of country were nicknamed "Yellow-earth-legs" from the color of their soil and from their dust covered bodies. And the Nankinese considered themselves much superior to these northern people. This region is bounded by the Grand Canal, the Hungtse Lake and Hwai River and the plains of Hofei District. It is a region made up of rolling hills, low mountains,—often barren rocks—with numberless tiny valleys running between. Frame homers are isolated and scattered not drawn together into farm villages as they are on the plains to the east, north or west.

In some places, where the population is especially sparse, are found a few forests. But over the large part of the country fuel cutters, after gathering their harvest of wild grass, start fires which run over the barren hills and effectually discourage the growth of young trees. Where these are allowed to grow, they are too often cut down, when the size of a man's arm, and turned to charcoal. Until recent years these hills have been but little cultivated. They have produced wild grass, lime and sand stone rock, wild birds and wilder animals and locusts. In the region there is about one-tenth of the area of Anhwei Province, but it holds not more than a twentieth of her inhabitants.

REFUGEE CROP

Judging by the numbers of refugees which annually drift into Chinkiang and Nanking one would think they were the chief crop of this land. The fact is that very few of these beggars are produced in this rolling country. On the contrary, many of them come in from the regions round about and begin to live once more. The overflow of the Hwai River, the Hungtse Lake and the Grand Canal produce the refugees. We have records of many such who have been driven out of their own flooded plains and have come into this "region of much land and few people" and in a few years have been able to buy their own farms and send back for their relatives to come into this yellow earth region.

This country is within the rice belt which has its northern boundary on the Hwai River. For some unknown reason the Chinese seem to have considered paddy fields and wide roads incompatible. The moment one crosses to the north side of the Hwai he finds wide roads and "Peking carts." There the farmers have their small four wheeled cart and there the roads and bridges are wide enough for an automobile to run. But south of the Hwai no cart can run. The roads are trails. The caravan animal and the wheelbarrow, with its squeak, carries the trade.

Before the days of the Tientsin-Pukow Railroad all bulky freight had to be shipped via Chinkiang, the Grand Canal, Hungtse Lake and the Hwai. At times it took a month to do what the railroad does in half a day. Chinese officials might travel overland in a sedan chair, but their luggage had to go by this slow water route. The rivers which flow through this region are small and only navigable a short distance during the period of high water. Auto busses have been introduced in the region north of the Hwia but roads will have to be constructed before they can be used in the region we are describing.

OLD TRAILS

For ages there has existed a caravan route starting from Pukow and running through Fengyangfu to the north of the Hwai. These caravans not only nanigable a short distance during paid duty to the internal customs (likin stations) but they also paid duty to robbers who watched the route. Men learned to travel in packs. Lone men were liable to be relieved of all their money and much of their clothing. Even officials traveled with an armed escort. Yet ninetynine out of every hundred of the inhabitants have usually been people who preferred to fight the "wind and water" in order to make a living. The other one-hundredth did the robbing. Where a farmer was able to own his own land and improve it, he made his home in to a castle with walls, moat and tower; or else bought a place in the nearby market town for his family. Men who worked for him, fought for him when it became necessary.

These rolling hills and limestone mountains have through all the ages been a protection for Nanking against military attacks from the north. No Chinese army has ever succeeded in marching a large force through it. They would starve before they could reach the other border. In 1911 when Chang Hsun had to leave some twentyfive hundred of his men to march overland, these raided the farmhomes and market towns as they went. Even then they had to scatter out to find sufficient to eat and only about one-fifth of them reached Hsuchowfu together where their chief had set up his headquarters. The others sold their guns, or turned into robbers or sought their homes. A commissariat simply cannot follow an army through the region, except as it now might be able to make use of the railroad. This explains the reason that attacks on Nanking through all the centuries have come from either up or down the Yangtse River.

Kublai Khan's armies under Bayan first swept south and took the Wuhan cities in Hupeh. From there they followed the Yangtse and took Nanking. Hungwu, the founder of the Ming Dynasty, was born and grew up near Fengyangfu, on the northern side of this region. He did not attempt to march over it in his attack on Nanking, but swept down the Grand Canal to Chinkiang, then up the Yangtse to Nanking. The later Manchu attack was by the same route. They looked upon Yangchow, twenty miles up the Grand Canal from Chinkiang, as the gateway to Nanking. When they had taken that wealthy city, looted it and ravaged its inhabitants, they had no trouble in taking Nanking.

THE TAIPINGS

When Hung Siu-tsuen, the Taiping chieftain took Nanking and made it his capital, he likewise did not attempt to send his invading forces northward across these hills. Instead he sent them first westward via the Hofei District, the ancestral home of Li Hung-chang. It was at that time and on that occasion that Li Hung-chang gained the attention of the Peking Government by organizing a local company of volunteers who harassed the Taiping armies on both their northward march and later on their southward retreat. Chang Hsun in 1911 foresaw the possibility of his having to retreat by this route from the Revolutionists who were threatening Nanking.

The Tientsin-Pukow Railroad management was refusing the railroad facilities for shipping troops. Long before the siege began Chang Hsun sent a regiment of his men marching overland by the old caravan route to spy out the land. No wonder he hesitated and waited at the Chuchow station for nearly a day, not because he was unwilling to seize the cars and engines there for transporting his troops across this forbidding territory, but because there were not enough cars. A full half of his troops would be lost by the way. So it proved.

Chu Hung-wu, founder of the Ming Dynasty, tried to conquer not the people in this rolling, barren hill country, but the country itself. His father was buried near Fengyangfu. He loved his home hills. He wanted his palace there. Nanking was the logical place for a capital. He set his men to work putting an official road across the more than one hundred miles of mountain and valley which separated the two cities. He built a tiny city beside the old fu city of Fengyang. He set apart a piece of land for his father's tomb and set some seventy stone images of men and animals along the pathway to it. He built another tomb near Nanking, also another palace. But Peking lured and eventually the capital was returned to the northern city. The palaces have gone to decay and likewise much of the royal road through the hills here. The railroad has stolen the traffic that once filed up and down the royal trail. Ruins of palatial buildings are still to be found along this pathway.

LOOTER'S PARADISE

Most of the invading armies have looked upon this hill country, not as a place for military maneuvers but as a country to loot. This was especially true on the part of the Taiping rebels. When their armies were defeated by those from the north and were driven back to the Yangtse Valley, they occupied the two cities of Nanking and Anking. From that time they degenerated into robbers bands. Their advance through these hills across the river from Nanking could be marked by the flames of the homes and villages they burned on their way. The low mountains around about Chuchow are still covered with thousands of stone piles which fleeing refugees threw up to form shelters for themselves and their destitute families. The rebels soon turned the prosperous valleys into a barren wilderness.

The Taiping bands of marauders, however, were halted by another force which took possession of this hill country about 1857 and held it for seven years. The Taiping Rebels having been called the "Longhaired," because they allowed their hair to grow instead of cutting it Manchu fashion, these second comers were called the "Second Longhaired."

Their leader, Li Chang-shou, was a native of eastern Honan. By some slip of fortune he gathered a fighting force together and slipped into the very heart of this rolling country and made Chuchow his headquarters. He soon had thousands of roaming wanderers about him whom he organized into twentyfour divisions and divided them over seven hsien districts. The Taiping rebels had driven out or starved out most of the inhabitants and Li Chang-shou took possession of all the land in his own name and for the few years became a feudal lord. He recognized no man's title to land.

He brought in settlers and started them to farming. If they had no water buffaloes or were short of tools he supplied them. He exacted his tribute of the grain they produced. He soon compelled the Taipings in Nanking to recognised his claim to this territory. They went elsewhere to loot.

CHUCHOW CITY

He built an almost palatial residence in the city for his yamen. Many of his followers obtained favorable pieces of land or sites on the street for small sums of money. They descendents still live here. Note one-fourth of the present inhabitants are of the original stock who held this country before the rebellion. Chuchow is the largest city in this mountainous district. From it he ruled this little territory like a little king of ancient days. The city and district had been turned into a mass of ruins by the maraudering bands of the Taipings. Li Chang-Shou did little to rebuild it. There were not a thousand civilians left in the city which before those days numbered not far short of 40,000 people.

In 1864 the forces under Li Hung-chang and General Gordon overcame the rebels and Nanking became once more an Imperial City. Li Chang-shou was asked to give his allegiance once more to the Manchu Government. He answered that he would be willing to do so, but he must first be given opportunity to collect his rents from his tenants. Would they give him twelve days to do so, three days out of each city gate? They agreed to the terms. He sent out his men and they simply brought in everything they could find that was useable. They neither burned houses nor murdered the people, but they took everything the people had and left them to starve. Countless numbers succumbed. After the twelve days Li Chang-shou gave in his allegiance and he was soon moved to Anking. Like all those who have lived by the sword, he died by the sword. A petty charge was brought against him and one morning he was beheaded. His troops were scattered.

Slowly the people, from all points of the compass, have flocked into this region. All Mandarin dialects are spoken here. Perhaps there are few regions in China where there are less abjectly poor people or so few very rich families. The coming of the Tientsin-Pukow Railroad has increased the rate of immigration per year, but there are still left large tracts of uncultivated land. Troops can be moved up and down the railroad and this country is no longer a wall of defence for Nanking.

But it still a land for robbing and looting. The military are not interested in protecting the interests of others. Even if they were it would be hard for them to police this entire section. Richer families are being driven into the larger market towns and the cities. Some day motor roads will be put through and communications be made easier. That will be when China has a stable government. When that comes these hills will be forestrated and these valleys will be filled with prosperous farm villages once more.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

Now comes the chemise blouse, a new combination to simplify dressing.

This from an undergraduate college monthly tells the story.

She—'In my bag.'

He—'And where is your bag?'

She (holding up vanity case)—'Here.'

He—'Say, lady, this is a Prom, not a swimming meet!"

The much-maligned Younger Generation does seem to feel that to be able to dress with the very minimum of under and outer clothing is something that raises one's rating distinctly with the rest of the Younger Generation.

In 1800 it was the boast of the fashionable woman that all her clothes, including shoes and jewelry, did not weigh over eight ounces. To be more heavily dressed than that was considered old fashioned. The flapper of that day must have derived considerable entertainment out of the harmless pastime of weighing her clothes. Just as young girls today in whispered conversation tell each other of the paucity of their clothing. Apparently to look fully and completely dressed with the minimum number of garments is something of a diversion.

And here comes the chemise blouses—simply yet cleverly devised to make it possible for you to appear perfectly dressed in a tailored suit and yet not to be burdened with a separate blouse. If you do not intend to remove your suit jacket there is no very good reason why you should bother with the regulation blouse. For years the shops have shown more or less ornate lingerie "fronts" apparently designed to be worn with sweaters and suits in lieu of a blouse, but there was always difficulty in keeping these devices properly anchored. By the time they had been attached to an underbodice to hold them in place you virtually wore a blouse—so why not wear an honest-and-truly blouse and be done with shams and subterfuges?

This new chemise blouse is quite a different proposition, however. It is especially desirable when you wish to wear a waistcoat or vest with your suit and still want a frilled or ruffled shirt front beneath.

Chemise blouse for the tailored suit.

potential should cry out against this overwhelming luxury. . . . Oh, that I could establish in the middle classes of London an anti-entree and anti-dessert movement!"

Of course Thackeray was writing, as he usually did, with a bit of facetiousness, but there was real conviction behind his comments.

Of course he did not object to having sweets at the end of the dinner, but he did object to the sweets that were offered to guests after they had already feasted sufficiently.

We Americans are especially inclined to give our guests an overabundance of the last courses of the meal. We are willing enough to get along without hors d'oeuvre or antepastes, appetizers or whatever you choose to call them. But we burden the dinner table toward the close of the meal, trying to show our own skill or the skill of our cooks in making cakes and pastries, ices, and the like. It is indeed the exceptional hostess who is willing to end her litte dinner with a well-made fruit salad, coffee and wafers, yet how often guests would give a sigh of relief if thus closed the feast!

WISE AND OTHERWISE

BY MARY MARSHALL

DOWN WITH THE DESSERT!

Dear old Thackeray had some good advice to give dinner-giving Englishmen—advice that would apply very well to presentday Americans:

"Half your money is swallowed up in a dessert, which nobody wants in the least, and which I always grudge to see arriving at the end of plenty. Services of culinary kickshaws swallow up money, and give nobody pleasure, except the pastry cook whom they enrich. . . . Someone with a voice

ALLEGE POLICE ASSAULTED FOUR RUSS STUDENTS

Protest Filed Against Chinese Authorities In Chapei

As the result of an alleged assault on several Russian students by Chinese police in Chapei early on Tuesday morning the Russian Students' Union yesterday lodged a protest with Mr. V. Grosse, former Russian Consul-General who has been in charge of Russian interests, and it is said that Mr. Grosse will make a formal protest to Commissioner for Foreign Affairs Hsu Yuan.

According to the story told by the Russian students four members of the Russian Students' Union, living at 32 Hengpeng Road, in Chinese territory off Darroch Road, while awaiting their turn to go to school in the United States, were the men assaulted. On Monday night, they say, there was a meeting of the Union which broke up about midnight. A short time later, they allege, entirely without warning sixteen or eighteen Chinese police broke down the doors of their lodgings, forcibly entered, and without making any explanation or demands began assaulting the Russians. Guns were brandished in all directions, and despite the fact that some of the students were in bed asleep and others were studying or working, they were beaten up indiscriminately.

Four of the students, M. Staragradsky, President of the Union; N. Malikoff, Secretary; and N. Andrieff and C. Baronoff, members, were badly beaten up, they say, and finally carted off to a Chinese jail where they were kept until after daylight the next morning, without charges of any kind having been filed against them.

The next day, after representations had been made to Mr. Grosse, the students were released, and it was then explained, according to the protest, that an unidentified Russian had thrown a rock through a Chinese liquor shop window, and had then run away. The police, it is said, took it for granted that it was one of the Russian students living at the Union living quarters, and therefore raided the place.

The Students Union, in its protest to Mr. Grosse, pointed out that it was one of the cardinal points of the Union that none of its members drink and assert that none of its members had anything to do with the incident.

Nations Are Asked To Organise For Lifeboat Service

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 1.—The International Lifeboat Conference today passed a resolution, in accordance with the suggestion of Count Poshil, urging all maritime countries not possessing a lifeboat service to organise one and favoring the establishment of an international lifeboat organisation on the lines of the Red Cross Society. The resolution will be sent to the League of Nations.

Adverse Trade Alarms Japanese

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 1.—Speaking in the Lower House this afternoon the Minister of Finance referred pessimistically to the adverse balance of trade and the depreciation in the exchange. He declared that habits of retrenchment and thrift were most imperative.

He announced that the Government would not float any further loans, but would meet expenditure under the old loan policy by appropriating Y.105,000,000 from the recent foreign loans, Y.154,000,000 from Government deposits, and Y.35,000,000 by means of low value popular savings bonds. The Minister further announced supplementary estimates of Y.265,000,000.

Akali Raiders Get Prison Terms

(Reuter's Service)

Nabha, July 1.—All the 22 leaders of the Akali raiders, who attempted to enter Nabha in February last, have been convicted of forming an unlawful assembly with an attempt at murder. Sucha Singh, who led the mob on a pony with a drawn sword, was sentenced to ten years' rigorous imprisonment. A Sikh woman, charged with inciting the mob, was sentenced to four years' ordinary imprisonment on account of her sex. Seventeen Akalis were sentenced to five years' rigorous imprisonment, and the other three on account of their age to three years' rigorous imprisonment. All except the woman were also fined 1,000 rupees.

"Began to think she would never get well."

Our Portrait is of Miss FLORRIE ORGAN, of 106, Clark Street, Ladywood, Birmingham, England, whose father writes:

"My daughter Florrie was suffering with a very bad head covered with Sores and Eruptions, and in fact her mother was afraid to comb her hair. She had been under several doctors, but all to no purpose, so I began to think she would never get well again and lose all her hair. As your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' cured me of Glandular Swellings in the Neck some years ago, and so averted my having to undergo an operation, I decided to give 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' a fair trial in the case of my daughter, and I am pleased to say it effected a wonderful cure in just over a fortnight."

SUFFERERS from Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Piles, Eczemas, Boils, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Eruptions, Rheumatism, Gout, should realise that lotions and ointments can but give temporary relief; to be sure of complete and lasting benefit the blood must be thoroughly cleansed of the impure waste matter the root cause of such troubles. Clarke's Blood Mixture quickly attacks, overcomes and expels the impurities; that is why so many remarkable recoveries stand to its credit. Pleasant to take, and free from injurious ingredients.

YOU CAN BE CERTAIN OF QUALITY WHEN YOU BUY RUBBER GOODS

There are just two ways of spending your money when you buy one or more of the thousands of different articles made of or in combination with rubber.

One way is to take chances—to gamble and buy just a tire, inner tube, hot-water bottle or pair of over shoes.

The other way is to buy the good rubber products of the largest manufacturer of rubber goods in the world, the United States Rubber Company.

When you buy any article bearing the trade mark of the United States Rubber Company you know it is good—uniformly good. For now, with the United States Rubber Company's two new revolutionary discoveries—The New Sprayed Rubber and The New Web Cord—you are assured of the purest rubber ever produced, with its natural properties unimpaired and uniform quality throughout.

Look for the "U.S." trade mark when next you buy anything made of or with rubber.

Crime Wave Sweeps Over Kuyuan, Kansu

(China Press Correspondence)

Kuyuan, Kansu, June 20.—Several brutal murders have been committed in this district the past month when four people had to give up their lives on account of blood thirstiness and money-madness on the part of a band of ruffians who have been preying on the populace about 100 "li" east of the city.

One night 18 armed men attacked a certain household grabbing the eldest son who was working around the home, bringing him outside of the house where the old father was living and threatened to kill the son if the old gent would not disclose the hiding place of his money. He answered that he would never do anything of the kind, whereupon they disemboweled the son outside his building, also informing the father of the fact. As he would not open the door, they threatened to burn him alive inside, and proceeded to get a large bale of straw which they shoved against the outer door setting fire to it.

As the door was destroyed they added on more fuel and pushed it further in to the room, thereby actually burning the old man out. He was groping along the floor for air, but would not surrender, when the passage way was so cleared out that one of the robbers got hold of him and dragged him outside, again asking for his money. He was in a semi-conscious condition, not being able to answer, which the robbers thought he was only feigning, when one of them gouged a large hole in his back with a sword, killing him instantly. They thereupon managed to get the burning bale outside, ran in and pried open a couple of boxes and got over a thousand dollars in money, and many valuable things. Two other members of the family also lost their lives at the same time.

LUCKY FIND

A day or two after the above gruesome incident, a young man was held up on the road by several men and robbed of all he had. His mother happened along, and at the scene of the hold-up found a piece of red paper. She was illiterate, but knowing the value of paper and characters took it home, thinking it to contain accounts of what people owed her son. Some days elapsed ere this paper was brought forth, when to her astonishment it had nothing to do with accounts, but contained 18 names! A man suggested taking this slip of paper to the magistrate here and report the case, which was accordingly done. The official bought this might lead to a clue, so sent detectives out and after a few days the man whose name headed the list was apprehended. He had been consuming about $5 worth of opium in two days causing suspicion to fall upon him, people wondering from whence he got so much money. He also happened to be the leader of this terrible gang of cutthroats, and after being arrested made known the whereabouts of his colleagues. Up to date eleven out of the eighteen have been caught. Most likely the others will soon be under lock and key and all ultimately shot.

Two executions took place here by shooting several weeks ago not in connction with the above cases. These two men were also highwaymen. The magistrate here is being lauded by the people for his quickness in disposing of such rogues, once they get into his hands. Of course, the death penalty has to be approved by the Lanchow authorities before it can be carried out.

Another young man in jail is accused of causing his father's death. They had been quarrelling over hiring some extra farm help, the son not willing to go to this extra expense. The old father flew at him in a rage and wanted to beat him, whereupon the son knocked him over, took hold of one of his legs and dragged him along the ground for quite a distance, causing the skin on his back to be rubbed off, and from which injuries he died a couple of days after. The neighbors thought this case ought to be reported, which caused his arrest. The talk on the streets is that perhaps the young fellow will be killed by "slicing," but it remains to be seen if the laws of the Republic carry such death penalty!

CROPS GOOD

The crops look very good around here, several good rains having fallen since the planting, which takes place here in March and April. It is too cold for winter wheat, so nothing is sown in the fall as in other places where it is milder. This place lies at an altitude of nearly 7,000 feet, making the summers delightfully cool and comfortable, but the winters bitterly cold!

Have just returned from a trip to Sianfu, and must say to the credit of the military in Shensi that their soldiers acted very decently. We did not meet with any kind of trouble from them at all. The poppy fields were very flourishing indeed, and a fairly good crop is expected in some regions. Opium-growing is not confined to out-of-the-way places only, but is very conspicuous along the main roads. Wheat was just being harvested down there, and according to all appearances a good crop is anticipated. We asked many farmers how much they expected a "mao" to yield, and most of them replied about 8 "tao" per "mao," which is not so bad.

GOOD ROADS!

The Tuchun of Kansu, Lu Hung-t'ao, was installed as Civil Governor, concurrently, about two months ago, and on our way down to Shensi over a month ago we met nearly a hundred big carts hauling friends and relatives of his, evidently coming to Kansu from Kiangsu, of which province he is a native, for the purpose of getting lucrative positions. Lu Hung-t'ao has always been liked by the people, and we believe he is trying to keep the province in peace and prosperity. Also saw several motor cars, parts, etc., on these carts being taken to Lanchow. When the much-talked-of motor car road between Lanchow and Sian will be finished, or rather started, is a matter of time, definite or indefinite, we don't know. We have heard that the Defence Commissioner in Pingliang has also purchased an automobile for his private use between Pingliang and the Kansu-Shensi border. If the officials get their eyes opened as to the feasibility of using autos, it will not take long before they make roads accordingly. We wish them success in getting this far-off province of Kansu brought nearer the coast. There are plenty of room and opportunities for development and progress along all lines.

The Postal Service is doing a rushing business to and from this province, expecially with parcel post, but are greatly handicapped for the lack of proper facilities in handling this great volume of business. Carts and pack animals are continually being commandeered by the military officials, leaving the helpless postal authorities in a quandary. We saw in Sian, stacked up in a new building erected for the purpose, over 110,000 catties of parcel post for Kansu, but which cannot be gotten off, and then there is more coming. It is about time the Government tries to get that much-needed railroad built to Kansu. Hiring carts and pack animals for parcel post is entailing an enormous expense to both the Postal Service and the public. As it is now, a letter takes about eleven days from Shanghai to this city, and this is not considered bad. China is really improving, but very slowly.

MISS MAXINE AVERILL, of New York, is showing how "King Toy," mechanical doll made by Mrs. Horatio Slater, socially prominent New York woman, smokes cigarette. (Int'l Newsreel)

MOTHER IS HELD ON MURDER CHARGE—While her husband, Frank Goldsheig, of New York City, was telephoning doctor to visit his wife because "she was imagining things," Mrs. Goldsheig closed doors and windows of their apartment and turned on gas. Left to right, Lester, Belle, Heiman and Julius were rescued with their mother, but ten-month old Isadora was beyond recovery. (Int'l Newsreel)

THESE MEN WILL HANDLE SOLDIER BONUS—Major General Robert C. Davis, adjutant general, U. S. A., under whose supervision Federal bonus will be distributed, and Major John N. Smith, in direct charge of work. (Int'l Newsreel)

HIS PLAYMATES HIS PALLBEARERS—Funeral services for Robert Franks, son of millionaire Chicago manufacturer, slain by his kidnapers, were simple. Only relatives, few close friends and twenty of his schoolmates were admitted to home. (Int'l Newsreel)

FACES STRANGE TEST—Seeking her baby, Miss Fannie Lockwood, St. Louis unmarried mother, must pick little one from among three waifs or it will not be restored to her. She says father took it and abandoned it at birth. (Int'l Newsreel)

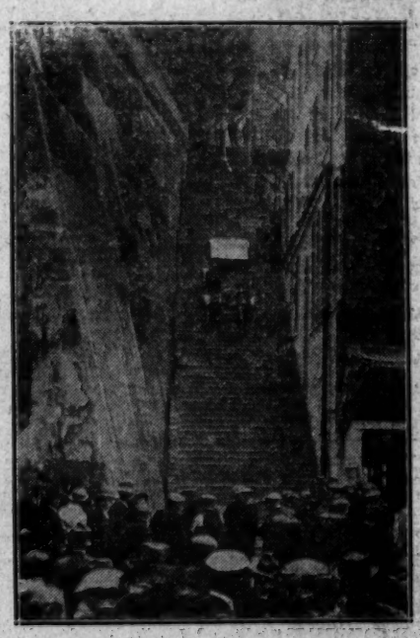
"NOW BRING ON YOUR 'WINDS'"—Aileen Pringle, Hollywood, Cal., motion picture actress, is all prepared for Mah Jong contest in this exotic costume. (Int'l Newsreel)



HAS NERVE—To demonstrate skill as driver, L. T. Shettler, of San Francisco, drove his car down this steep flight of steps, under perfect control at all times. (Int'l Newsreel)

LATEST PHOTOGRAPH of George Sisler, star player of St. Louis Browns. (Int'l Newsreel)

IS IT RED PAINT?—While her party guests staged jazz funeral, Imogene Wilson (above), New York City "Follies" beauty, "went through motions" of dying of self-administered poison until physician arrived. "Pooh, pooh," he said, "only harmless sugar pills." So Imogene recovered, though she says heart is broken and head aches.

LATEST PHOTOGRAPH of U. S. Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho. (Int'l Newsreel)

"FLYING ANGEL"—After winning praise for their marching in parade of Boston Bloomer Girls, these fair young things did bit of stunt gymnastics. (Int'l Newsreel)

LITTLE THEODORE ROOSEVELT, son of Assistant Secretary of Navy, feeds elephant when circus visits Washington. (Int'l Newsreel)

SPECIAL DAILY FEATURE

FINANCIAL AND TRADE ARTICLE

U. S. TRADE POSITION IS UNIQUE IN ALL HISTORY

First In Manufacturers And First In Raw Materials

LEADS NATIONS

Great In Demand And Also Great In Supply

Recent figures gathered by E. M. Miller, statistician of the National Bank of Commerce in New York City, and by other experts show that the United States now occupies an international economic position which is unique in the history of the world. This remarkable trade dominance has been gained through the fact that the country has reached the position where it is—both the foremost producer of raw material and the foremost manufacturing nation.

The United States wheat crop constitutes over one-fourth of all wheat grown. Its corn crop is three-quarters of the world corn crop, and it produces about three-fifths of all cotton. Although the normal wool consumption of American mills is more than twice the domestic wool production, the wool clip in the United States is nearly one-half that of Australia, the foremost producer.

The yearly coal output in the United States is equivalent to the combined output of Germany, Great Britain and France, the three next largest producers. The yearly output of iron ore is well over 50 percent of all iron ore mined.

Two-thirds of the world's petroleum is produced in the United States, and it leads in the production of copper, lead and zinc, as well as forest products. This country took first in the iron and steal industry about 1890; now its annual product is in excess of the combined output of the United Kingdom, Germany, France and Belgium.

RAW COTTON

In the closing years of the nineteenth century, the United States became the foremost consumer of raw cotton, taking the leadership from the United Kingdom, which heretofore had been the largest user. Due to the fact that the proportion of fine counts spun in Great Britain, British yardage at capacity is still in excess of that of American mills, but it is believed that this precedence cannot long be maintained.

Until the world war, the United Kingdom was definitely the leader in woollen and worsted industries of the world. During the war period, American raw wool consumption and production of fabrics expanded rapidly, and it is probable that there is not now any material difference in the capacity of the industries of the two countries from the standpoint of wool consumption.

The United States now uses one-third of the world's cotton, one-fourth of the commercial supply of wool, about three-fifths of all copper mined and iron ore produced, two-thirds of the annual raw silk crop entering into commerce, and from two-thirds to four-fifths of all the raw rubber grown.

In 1860, just prior to the Civil War, 3,356,000 persons, or 11 percent of the total population, were employed in agriculture, and only 1,311,000, or 4 percent of the population, were reported as wage earners in manufacturing enterprises. By 1900 the number engaged in agriculture had risen to 10,212,000 while wage-earners in manufacturers numbered 5,713,000. From 1900 to 1920, the number engaged in agriculture remained about stationary, while the number of industrial wage-earners jumped to 9,096,000, or nearly 9 percent of the total population.

EUROPEAN ATTENTION

This phenomenal development is attracting great attention in the manufacturing countries of Europe, and it is apparent that there is a certain apprehension as to the factors which have brought it about. The assumption that the United States has deliberately set out to dominate the world overlooks the fact that it is the foremost manufacturing nation today, not as a result of national policy designed to bring about that result, but because industrial development has proved remarkably profitable there.

Outwardly, the conditions surrounding the development of industry in the United States do not appear to differ greatly from the influences which have conditioned the development of manufactures in Europe. Fundamental differences, nevertheless, exist. Evidence of them is found in the fact that, in the main, American manufacturers produce for domestic demand, while European industries are heavily dependent on export business. Despite the enormous production of iron and steel, the United States exports only about 6 percent, of the total product.

In fact, the indifference of American manufacturers to the requirements of foreign markets is conspicuous. This attitude was described by a business man in Shanghai who said, "The manufacturers in the United States simply look upon the market in China and other foreign countries as a convenient place to dump surplus products not required for the home market."

PROCESSING EGGS REDUCES LOSSES, STATES EXPERT

Their Successful Preservation Insured By This Method

The preservation of eggs is perhaps our greatest economic food problem, according to C. C. Shafer of the American Agriculturist, who points out that, in addition to being one of the most valuable crops we raise, the egg crop is also both the most fragile and most liable to contamination and decay. Reduced to dollars and cents, the egg crop of the United States last year was approximately $1,000,000,000. According to a published statement by one of the largest dairy houses in the New York district the annual loss in eggs is in excess of $150,000,000. This means only one thing, declares Mr. Shafer—that the man who produces eggs is not enjoying the full value of his crop, and ultimately the consumer is paying more for eggs than he would if proper methods of preservation had been employed.

"It is safe to say that every inhabitant of the United States eats one egg a day," Mr. Shafer states. "Therefore the subject of egg preservation is not only vital to the producer, the shipper and the dealer, but enjoys a place in every consumer's thought, and any system which would tend to save a portion of this vast loss should be readily receive by each.

"The domestic hen was originally a product of China, and, of course, the Chinese, realising that eggs were good to eat, were perhaps the first to attempt methods of preservation. They found by packing the egg and coating it with vegetable oil, wrapping it in corn husks and burying it in the ground they could keep an egg for a long period of time. However, in this system of preservation the entire content of the egg was discolored to such an extent that perhaps we would be afraid to eat it."

After describing the various succeeding methods used to preserve eggs, Mr. Shafer says no real advance on a commercial scale was made until the advent of the modern cold-storage house with its temperature maintained slightly below the freezing point and the introduction of humidity. We were introduced to what is termed the cold-storage egg, he says, which marked the first great step toward egg preservation, and which has been, until recently, the most satisfactory.

"Cold storage," he goes on, "has its shortcomings for the following reasons: First, an egg is practically the embryo of a little chick, and when it is laid, if it is kept at any temperature above 70 degrees and is fertile, it will start to incubate. Second, if it is an infertile egg and the temperature is less it starts to decay. There is no happy medium, and the cause of decay exists within the egg itself, for like any other embryo of flesh it will decompose.

"While cold storage has made it possible for us to receive a good quality egg, the combination of the latest advance known as processing with cold storage now makes it possible for all of us to enjoy good eggs practically the whole year round. The processing of eggs is no fantastice dream, and, like everything else that really amounts to anything, is extremely simple and easy to understand.

"The most positive way of destroying decay is to sterilise. We all know that pasteurising or sterilising of milk has prevented a great deal of loss, but how to sterilise eggs is another problem, although it could be done in several ways. It can be done by dipping the egg into boiling water, but in a short time a partially cooked egg would result. On the other hand, no one has ever seen a hard-boiled egg go rotten. Proof positive that if we could sterilise eggs we could keep them almost indefinitely.

"In man's quest for some system by which he could sterilise eggs it was found that oil heated to a temperature in excess of 200 degrees Fahrenheit would not coagulate the contents of an egg nearly as quickly as water did. Therefore, experiments were carried on with oil, and today the oil, gum and wax processed egg has taken its place among the users second only to that of the new-laid egg.

"The processing of eggs to preserve them consists in dipping them for approximately ten seconds in a hot bath of the processing solution, after which they are placed in storage. The hot processing bath raises the temperature of the egg and expands its contents enough to exhaust most of the oxygen in the air chamber. In other words, it sterilises the outer shell and the membrane which is in close proximity, and as the content is expanded the ovygen which has gathered in the air chamber is either consumed by the intense heat or forced out through the pores of the shell. Upon being taken from the bath, the outside of the shell cooling first, a portion of free-flowing oil, gum and waxes fill up the pores of the shell with an air-tight film that leaves a vacuum in the air cell and prevents evaporation and contamination by foreign substances or odors entering through this perfect hermetic sealing.

"The slight coagulation of the inner membrane also tends to toughen this part of the egg, giving added protection to the contents. Thus protected, processed eggs when removed from cold storage show much less shrinkage than unprocessed eggs, their new-laid sweetness, opaqueness of white and firmness of yolk fat remarkably well, and so far as food value, flavor or table quality are concerned can be distinguished from fresh eggs only with difficulty. Those who have given much attention to the process have generally become enthusiastic about it, and many predictions have been made that in the near future all eggs would be processed to insure their getting to the consumer in better condition.

"If this were an expensive system it might be of little value, but as the cost of processing eggs is very small it enters vitally into the economic problems of today.

"The total cost of processing will be between 1¾ and 2 cents per dozen, varying according to the amount which has to be paid for labor in a particular district.

"Processed eggs when offered for sale have always brought a premium over the ordinary cold-storage variety, for the reason that they are of much better quality and do not have the ordinary cold-storage losses. They can readily be used in competition with the fresh egg. In fact, a number of hospitals, institutions, large hostelries and asylums are now feeding them to the patients practically from Aug. 1 to March 1; the other few months when fresh eggs are available the latter are used.

"If these eggs can be fed to the sick in our hospitals and answer all the intent and purposes of a strictly fresh egg, then it is time that all of us become cognisant of the fact and adopt the processed egg for use during the Fall and Winter months.

"There is nothing which will tend to equalise the price of eggs the year round any more than the universal demand for processed eggs, and from all indications this is surely coming."

Russia's New Currency Maintains Its Parity

Good Rule Has Not However, Provided For Needs Of Small Money

Berlin, June 8.—As the Berlin market sees it, Russia's new currency seems to be holding its position. The official Soviet organ Nakaunie boasts that "after three months, our new ruble is as stable as the dollar." It is remarked however, that Russia's success in this undertaking, like that of Germany, has been achieved at the cost of severe money stringency and a credit crisis.

By May 1 the Government had issued 85,000,000 gold rubles worth of new stable Treasury notes, which are convertible into tchervontsi. Of this, however, only 14,000,000 gold rubles is in small notes and 8,000,000 in silver, whereas the finance commissariat has declared that 100,000,000 gold rubles in small money is needed. The commissariat announced that it will further issue 70,000,000 gold rubles in small cash, chiefly in the form of silver half rubles, which is to be effected before the end of the year.

The new Treasury notes are not depreciating; on the contrary, owing to the frantic demand for small cash, they appear to change hands at times at an actual premium against tchervontsi. But industry has been badly hit by the lack of credit, the Moscow State Bank now charging industrial borrowers as high as 12 percent monthly interest.

AFTER MALARIA
His Doctor Recommended
DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS
"My Health Improved Enormously"

Malaria sufferers do not need to be told how badly this disease runs them down. Many are left so debilitated after malarial attacks that they fear robust health and strength will never be theirs again. It is for the information and encouragement of these that Mr. J. E. Wyesinghe, book-keeper to Messrs. Walker Bros., Colombo, allows the following statement of his own personal experience to be published.

Mr. J. E. Wyesinghe

"Whilst tea-planting at Ratnapura I fell a victim to malaria," Mr. Wyesinghe says. "I had continual attacks and was constantly under doctors' orders. Finally I left the district and returned to Colombo in the hope of getting better health there.

"The physician I consulted in Colombo, a very eminent man, advised me to try a course of sea baths and to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I found almost from the commencement the pills did me good. Then the fever left my system, my nerves which had been shattered gave me no more trouble, my general health improved enormously. I still take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills whenever I am a little run down and have found them an ideal tonic."

It is by purifying, enriching and increasing the blood stream that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for pale People build up the health, restore lost strength and energy, revitalise the nerves, eliminate the causes of indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia and anaemia. Equally good for women as for men, they are world-famous as a specific for the special ailments of the weaker sex. Your chemist sells them, or post free, $1.50 per bottle, $8.00 for 6 bottles, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

Commission Will Not Demand Cotton Duty Changes In America

Tariff Board Tells Senate Depression In Trade Is Worldwide

Washington, June 8.—The depression in the cotton manufacturing industry has been found by the Tariff Commission to be practically worldwide in scope, and that body sees no indications for immediate improvement. The commission's views were embodied in a reply to a Senate resolution by Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, made public today.

Replying to that phase of the resolution concerning reasons for importations into the United States of cotton fabrics, the commission explained that a portion of the population which could afford finer clothes was accustomed to turning to England, France or Switzerland to supply their requirements. The trademarks and reputations of certain of the products provided their selling basis, and the commission expressed its opinion that consumers of the particular commodities were alike the world over.

Regarding the inquiry on import duties, the commission replied that it felt unwarranted, in the absence of verified production cost figures, in making recommendations for readjustment of the tariff rates. It declined to venture an opinion whether changes in the tariff duties would affect the importations.

Discussing the low volume of world sales of cotton products, the commission said there had been great reductions in the purchasing powers of consumers in the several cotton using nations and this had curtailed sales from the looms and factories of the United States, as well as of foreign manufacturers.

The commission informed the Senate that it was incapable of replying with definiteness to many of its inquiries because of the haste with which the response must be prepared to reach the Senate before adjournment. It explained that no investigation of conditions in the cotton manufacturing industry, generally, had been made, and that such an investigation, to be conclusive in its findings, would require at least one year.

The "Encroachment" Of Western Civilisation

ONE day during the Washington Conference an American newspaper man asked Admiral Tsai Ting-kan, a member of the Chinese Delegation to the Conference, whether the Chinese would like to be freed from Western contacts and innovations. Admiral Tsai pondered a moment and replied:

"You might ask me how I would go about it to forget my English!"

The above, which appears in Mr. Millard's new book, "Conflict of Policies in Asia," constitutes about the best answer which has come to our attention to the propaganda now emanating from many more or less responsible Chinese sources against the encroachments of the so-called "Western Civilisation." It is difficult now-a-days to pick up a Chinese magazine which does not contain an article or two which contains arguments calculated to warn the Chinese people against the dangers of the ways of the West. "Every thoughtful Chinese leader is confronted with the serious problem of salvaging Chinese civilisation with reference to the heritages of other nations," writes a serious young man in a recent issue of one of the college magazines. "Shall we adopt a laissez faire policy toward the encroachments of European and American civilisation with the understanding that it will be absorbed by us within a few generations just as the Mongols absorbed our civilisation in the past? Certainly not; we are—now living in circumstances entirely different from those of bygone days. Shall we then accept Occidental civilisation at the expense of our own, or shall we reject it in order to preserve the treasure of our own inheritance?"

The above quotation is a fair example of the thoughts which are troubling a considerable section of China's thoughtful young men. Or, to take another quotation, "The Chinese people are progressing rapidly but this progress is coming into conflict with the attempt of the West to westernise Chinese education and culture. . . . Simply to give up all that is in China to adopt western standards of civilisation and culture cannot but mean the destruction of the Chinese race which has been able to last through centuries upon the foundation of its own civilisation and culture."

To refer back again to Admiral Tsai's remark about his inability or disinclination to forget the English language which he learned as a boy, he might have continued and asked how the wealthy Chinese merchants in Shanghai could get along without their western motor cars or their modern office buildings or their steamships and railroads.

One well-known writer on Far Eastern topics recently paraphrased the oft-quoted lines of Kipling thusly, "The truth is that East and West met long ago, and never again can they be set apart."

The East tried long ago to repel the West and was unsuccessful, and it is impossible now to undo or un-live the past. To quote again from the author referred to in the preceding paragraph:

"Orient and Occident primarily are terms of geography. The East and West are not situated on different planets, nor inhabited by different forms of life. They are places on the same earth, made more accessible to each other almost with every passing day. It is easy to say that it would have been better all around for imperial dictators of China, Japan, and India to forbid intercourse with Westerners; but those dictators at times did try to do that, and failed. Nor in the light of modern knowledge can one believe that it ever was possible to keep East and West apart permanently. When men's voices traverse Asia in a fraction of a second by radio, when men fly across continents in one day and across a great ocean in the same time, when ships travel under as well as on the surface of water, how can one conceive the disconnection and detachment of great sections of the earth, and of inhabitants of those sections?"

Instead of fighting against the inevitable encroachment of Western civilisation, how much better it would be if all Chinese took the sensible viewpoint of a Chinese writer in a recent issue of the Echo, the magazine published at St. John's University:

"In salvaging Chinese civilisation, we must not forget to take Western culture into account. It is true that we should save what we have inherited from our ancestors, but it is equally true that China should understand the real spirit of the Westerners. A thorough knowledge of their civilisation as a means to our end is most advantageous. As our culture may possess remarkable features, so may it possess shortcomings, due, perhaps, to racial weakness. In this epoch of world history, one's life cannot stand the test of times unless it borrows blood from another civilisation or other civilisations. In order to keep pace with the progress of the world, China has to judge Western institutions and ideas critically, absorb those which may remedy her drawback and enrich her life, and above all, apply to the building up of her own civilisation the method by which the people of the West have built up theirs. Here it needs to be mentioned again that we ought not to swallow occidental civilisation en masse, but we ought to study it carefully and see how we can make the best out of it."

A Center Of Miracles

IN addition to its reputation of being the recognised stronghold of a counterfeit Government, Canton would appear to be well on the road to acquiring international fame as the champion, long distance miracle-producer of the universe. Not long ago Dr. Sun Yat-sen was reported to have died. Then he was reported to be alive. To not a few that appeared in the nature of nothing less than a miracle. Now comes the report of a strange incident that is really too good to pass unnoticed in these dog days when any piece of diversion that is likely to take one's mind off the sizzling weather is only too readily welcomed.

That an inspired warning of the Shameen bomb outrage was given two hours before the event but was unfortunately neglected is the purport of a remarkable rumor taken back to Hongkong by a Chinese merchant who happens to be a Christian. It is with no sense of levity—in view of the grim character of the Shameen affair—that we direct attention to the rumor in question but solely with the desire to emphasise the solemn absurdity of the rumors that are suffered to gather force in the region of China where Dr. Sun and his supporters hold sway. The Chinese Christian above referred to who went to Canton on business and has since returned to Hongkong, in the course of conversation with a China Mail reporter, said that a cross in the French Cathedral in Canton fell from its supports, but the ominous portent was apparently lost on the verger and its importance was therefore missed. He claims that there are many who learned of the story and corroborate his authenticity.

For the benefit of local readers, it may be added that there is a Roman Catholic place of worship in the southern suburb of Canton. It is situated in the "new city" and is best known to the Chinese by its vernacular name of "stone castle" on account of its having been built almost entirely of stone. The Chinese associate many rumors with the origin of the church and the negotiations which led up to the granting of the site to the French Mission by the then Canton authorities. It is also one of Canton city's prominent landmarks, its spires being visible from the river.

Canton, however, has no monopoly of laying claim to premonitions of coming events. It is odd how many people are to be found even in the West who become singularly wise after the event and who claim, after the occurrence of a great tragedy, that they had supernatural warnings of the disaster. Thus after the Titanic disaster there were many people who complacently told their friends and newspaper reporters how they had booked passages in the ill-fated liner but cancelled them at the eleventh hour for some reason or other and thus escaped perdition—which would be interesting, if true. And nearer our own doors, the writer of this article recalls, at the time of the Lincheng hold-up last summer, more than one local notability declaring that he or she was almost on the point of proceeding in the Blue Express but was prevented from undertaking the journey at the last moment for unforeseen reasons. The possession of a big imagination adds greatly to the amenities of an otherwise dull world. In the case of the Cantonese Christian, it is probably less a case of an irrepressible desire to "spin a yarn" than the working up of his mind to the point of religious fervor.

Our Armed Robbers

WHEN something particularly exciting happens in connection with an armed robbery, it generally receives due prominence in the local press. When one or two such crimes, attended with elements which make "good copy," occur within a short time of each other, many are apt to speak of another epidemic of this particular crime, whereas it is a sad fact that armed robberies occur which such frequency in Shanghai, that they might be said to be endemic rather than epidemic. Yesterday morning we reported three such occurrences on the front page; a few days previously the papers were full of an exciting chase for men caught with arms on them. It is reasonable to assume that these men were bent on some nefarious undertaking, and possibly, but for the searches that are periodically carried out by the police, more of these crimes would be committed.

The evil seems to be on the increase, though possibly actual figures may give this impression the lie, but that may be due to the fact that more weapons seem to be used nowadays, and possibly more fatalities ensue as a consequence. Certainly arms are cheaper in this Settlement than they used to be, the gangs appear to be about the size they always have been, but there is the significant fact, that whereas one or two of their members might have been armed a few years back, each one of them nowadays carries a weapon.

The police, we know, do everything possible. They carry out their duties in search of these men at the risk of their lives, and the death and injury of policemen engaged in endeavoring to apprehend these marauders have become all too common, since Con Hamilton lost his life in Yates Road. Not only that, we know from past experience that the police force devotes much time and energy trying to break up gangs, which they know do exist, though they may be ignorant as to their exact membership, and it will be remembered that only a very few years ago, as the result of clever and persistent work, one of the most important bands operating in Shanghai was successfully broken up. But this does not cure the evil, does not even seem to palliate it, and the number of armed robberies that occur during the year has actually to be numbered in the hundreds. What is the reason? We venture to believe the Police are correct in a statement that has often been made that the failure of Chinese victims of these thugs quickly to report to the police makes the work of the latter exceedingly difficult. Cases have been known where inmates of a raided house have waited hours, almost, before anyone dared venture out to raise a complaint, and when they have eventually done so it has been too late to throw a cordon round the district involved, which might do something towards catching the miscreants.

That is one reason, but there are others. In present conditions, the risk of capture which the armed robber runs is not great enough to act as any real deterrent. And if he is caught, the penalty is too light. True it is death at the hands of the executioner, but that is not a sufficient deterrent to the desperadoes who engage on these courses. A prison sentence is even less, for the simple reason that many who follow this dark trade oftentimes find their prisons better found than the homes which they normally inhabit. Again the fact that capture might mean death undoubtedly tends towards that degree of resistance to apprehension which leads to shooting in our streets. If an armed robber knows that capture means execution, why should he not strive to escape, even if he has to murder a few in doing so? He may add to the heinousness of his offence, but he certainly adds nothing to his punishment.

It is argued that the infliction of corporal punishment cannot be reinstituted without an amendment of the Chinese Criminal Code, but that is no reason why agitation for an amendment in this respect should not be as energetically prosecuted as possible, or some other form of punishment evolved which does come within the four corners of the law. Foreigners certainly should not be allowed to view these happenings with complacency, merely because it happens that Chinese are generally the victims. The logical development seems to point ultimately to foreigners also becoming objects of these unwelcome attentions and we suppose then that something drastic will be done in the matter but, it would be much better if every possible means of dealing with the scandal were explored before any such grave necessity arises. It was for this reason that we viewed with some alarm the decision of the Mixed Court authorities that men charged with this crime should be defended by counsel, allotted for the purpose by the Court. As was argued in behalf of the Police, the increase in opportunities of escape afford a greater inducement to the commission of the crime, and we would much prefer to see it laid down that where men are caught in flagrante delicto the old practice should be maintained.

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

By Mathy

GOD'S WHISPER

"Anybody might have heard it, but God's whisper came to me," says the poet.

God always whispers. At least to the soul. He may thunder to nations and speak to armies in the lightning. But to the individual His message is not in the mighty wind, nor the earthquake, nor the fire, but in the still, small voice.

God lives in the bottom of the funnel of silence.

He is the treasure concealed in solitude.

He meets men alone, in the dark.

Congregations have their use, and books, and papers, and multitudes, and friends, but God loves the silent way.

He is every soul's most secret secret.

If, as Thoreau said, it takes two to tell the truth, it takes also two to make a revelation; it takes the whisper of God and the listening man.

God's whisper runs to and fro upon the earth. It might be heard in all cottages, palaces, marts, offices, inns, and councils—if only we listened.

Go into the silence. Give your soul time to calm. Let the hurly-burly die down, the crash of passion, the struggle of doubt, the pain of failure, the rankings of wrong, the clamor of ambition. Cease from self. Be still.

Practise this. It is an art, and not to be mastered out of hand. Try it again and again, as patiently, as determinedly, as lovingly as one practises the violin or the making of a statute.

And after a while, as virtuosity comes after long trials, there will come to life in you the needed sixth sense, by which you can hear the whisper.

Some day you will get it. It may rise like a strange dawn in your consciousness. It may stir in you as life stirs in the egg. It may penetrate the deep chambers of your being as a strain of mystic music.

And it will be the price of life. You will not be able to give it to another. Every man must receive such things himself. All of God's most vital secrets are marked non-transferable.

But it will be yours—that which in all your life is most utterly yours.

It will strengthen you in weakness, cheer you in hours of gloom. When you are at sea and confused, lost in the winds of casuistry, it will shine out as a pole-star. When you are afraid, it will reinforce you as an army with banners.

It will lull you to sleep with its music. It will give you poise. It will give you decision.

No man can tell what the whisper says. Each soul must hear for itself.

This is a great secret. One can only point the way—the way is silence.

There stands God and says: "I will give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith."

Books And So Forth

By Frederic F. Van de Water (F. F. V.)

Those who have charged us, at one time or another, with a stubborn hostility toward the Eighteenth Amendment are sadly in error. Nothing, we are convinced, could be further from the truth. It is a fact, we admit, that when confronted by the stark theory of prohibition we objected to it vociferously. We claimed, if we recall, with more fervor than originality, that the amendment was a violation of the citizen's right of private ownership, an attempt of an undemocratic government to insist that if a man wished to exercise the God given right of drinking himself to death he could do it legally only with carbolic acid or lysol.

The truth is also found in a frank confession of error. We were wrong. At that time we spoke only of the theory of prohibition We did not appreciate as thoroughly as we do now the wide divergence between any theory and its practice.

* * *

Much of the suffering to which humanity is heir is caused, it seems to us, by that divergence between science and art, theory and practice, formulae and their application. As propagandists, as advertisers, mortals are probably the biggest flops in the universe. No system has ever been devised for reconciling the written word with the word made flesh. The stonegraven admonitions of Sinai, the convictions etched on human souls, the principles of democratic government, even the tailors' and automobile advertisements are entirely different matters in the abstract and in the concrete. We, who have frequently compared our image in the suit we have just bought with the picture of that same suit in the fashion plate, grasped that truth in part many years ago. It is a wonder that we didn't extend it sooner to encompass all human affairs. If we had only visualised the difference between any theory and its practice, years and years ago, we should not now be obliged to recant.

We should not be compelled to accept, and even praise, the dry law.

* * *

As far as we can see, prohibition, contrary to our prediction has taken no joy out of life. Rather, we believe, it has regenerated civilisation, added tang and spirit to existence, offered easy outlet for a number of mutinous moral desires, brought romance within the reach of all, dignified hospitality and afforded adventure for even the meanest and meekest of mankind.

Under prohibition's alchemy, rum has changed sex. Through the ages, until January 29, 1919, rum has always been essentially masculine—Bacchus, tanned of throat and knee—a virile, blustering person. Upon that date it became feminine in the mid-Victorian, or worse, sense of the word. From a jolly, ingenuous god, it was changed into a dryad, provocative, elusive, stirring mankind to effort and the ardor of the chase; calling into play resources, courageous effrontery, canny subterfuges; obliging the human to employ both his virtues and his wits.

Prohibition, we are convinced, has added sweetness and brilliance to life.

* * *

We do not believe that in time abstemiousness will make the race better, but we are firmly convinced that in another century the dry law will make of Americans a race of supermen, keen, dauntless, infinitely resourceful. Civilisation tended to turn the race soft through giving it what it wanted the first time it cried. Prohibition makes it work for what it gets, affords it something on which to exercise its teeth and stiffen its sinews.

It seems to us that the fiber of the nation was weakest and most lax when highballs were a quarter each and wine was served free at every 75 cent table d'hote. Eating a meal in public during that era was merely a gross process of filling the digestive cavity with solids and liquids. Today it is adventure, in which man can react bits of his emotional heritage; scraps of Horatius, of Galahad, of Bayard, of the Light Brigade and of Phil Sheridan; even of Machiavlli Metternich, Disraeli and Talleyrand.

The conquistadores of Peru and Mexico, we think, thrilled to the same emotion that possesses him who tries to discover whether the, "special grape juice," cited on the menu card at $2 a bottle, is really worth $2 a bottle, or is anything so heinous and despicable, so fraudulent and ethically indecent as merely special grape juice.

One must be hardy, one must be collected and outwardly calm, firm and infinitely daring, to get a glass of beer. He must have many of the qualities of a cavalry commander to attain this end. A few years ago, the only exercise his intellect derived from this process of getting his nickel out of his pocket and shoving it across the bar.

Even so meek a person as ourself we find has grown hardier under this orderal. If prohibition only continues in force long enough, we may discover ourself equipped to play a real man's part in the world. We used to cower before waiters. We shrink from them no longer, or very little. There have been times when we actually have had the headwaiter himself summoned to our table and have faced that august person, scarcely flinching. After an encounter such as this, we have wished the dragon-slaying Siegfried were about so that we might patronize him.

* * *

Our only objection to prohibition is that it doesn't go far enough. If food were also placed upon the forbidden list, we believe humanity would be better for it—fewer, perhaps, but much, much better.

Imitating The X-Ray

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,

Mr. J. L. Kellogg, of New York, has called my attention to a very interesting phenomenon of interference of light which may be witnessed with no more complicated, or costly, an instrument than a small feather from the breast of a duck or a turkey. The feather is to be held close in front of the eye, while between it and a well-illuminated window, the hand is held up, at a distance of a couple of feet.

The effect is a quite startling imitation of a radiogram, made by an X-ray machine, showing the bones of the fingers enclosed in the semi-transparent flesh. The accompanying picture shows the appearance. It will be seen that, apparently as in a true radiogram, the irregularity of outline of the finger-bones stands revealed, the greatest thickness of the seeming bone being at the joints.

A FALSE X-RAY EFFECT.

The resemblance to a real X-ray shadow photograph is indeed so striking that some persons jump to the conclusion that somehow or other the feather actually plays the part of an X-ray, and wonder why so simple a method is not employed to save expense!

The fact is that the feather comes much nearer to behaving like the astronomer's interferometer, which measures the diameter of stars millions of millions of miles away, than it does to a real imitation of the variable penetration of the Roentgen rays through bodies opaque to light.

It is not the shadows of the finger bones that the feather reveals, but parallel bands, alternately bright and dark, produced by the passage of the light, that has grazed the opposite sides of the fingers, through the close network of the feather, which acts upon it like a diffraction grating, causing certain of the rays to be extinguished by interference and others to be enhanced by superposition.

If you hold the feather before a bright electric light you will see very beautiful spectra, with all the colors in their order from red to violet. Such a light may be used instead of window light to show the apparent X-ray effect, but for that purpose it should be enclosed in a ground-glass, or other light-diffusing globe. The fine, reticulated structure of the feather is itself worth studying with a strong magnifier.

As shown in our picture the outer sides of the misty-looking fingers are bordered with dark bands, less decided than the central spines, and not colored like the latter. There is no appearance of shadows corresponding to the bones of the hand, because the angular breadth of the hand is too great; but if some other person holds his hand for you at a distance a yard or so, the hand shows a triangular shadow in the center, while apparently the wrist bone comes into plain view.

For obtaining the best effect the experimenter should place himself in a dark part of the room, and if the light from only one window enters, so much the better. In a sense, this is merely playing with a toy, yet how instructive such playing may be when some of the most recondite laws of nature enter into the game. Nature is the best of playfellows.

Women In Ancient Babylon

The position of women, and the laws relating to marriage in Babylon, 2100 years B. C., form the subject of an interesting article by Sir Flinders Petrie in "Ancient Egypt," the publication of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt.

For the first time it is possible to compare the marriage laws of the Babylonians, the Assyrians, and the Hittites, owing to the triumph of Dr. Hrozny, who, with the financial help of the Czecho-Slovakian government, has succeeded in reading and publishing hundreds of clay tablets written in the scarcely known Hittite language.

"The Assyrians had great trouble with the unruliness of the married women," writes Sir Flinders Petrie. "Theft from the house and gadding to friends were severely punished. If a wife stole from a house a value over five manas of lead her husband had to restore it, and crop her ears; if he would not, then the owner of the goods cropped her nose.

"Any one lending to a married women was to be thrown into the river, but not bound; if he got out, he was further to be punished, as the husband punished the woman. If a wife went to see another woman in a distant house, without the owner knowing, he yet had to pay three and a half talents of lead, and her ears were cropped.

"If he did know of it he had to pay triple, and if he disputed he was thrown into the river. If a husband found his wife with another man, he was at liberty to kill or mutilate them both.

"A scold or reviler was to be separated from her husband and children. . . . If a man laid his hand on a woman he lost a finger, and if he kissed her his lower lip was cut off."

The Assyrian law courts provided for all difficulties. If a married man was living in his father-in-law's house and his wife died he had the right to pick one of her sisters and marry on the same dowry.

Divorce was for various causes, but always for a defect in the wife. In Babylon a wasteful wife could be called to account before the authorities and divorced. If the husband did not divorce her she had the option of becoming a servant to a second wife. An invalid wife had the same tragic option, or she could take her marriage portion and go home to her father.

The stern Assyrians were very particular about the veiling of women. All married women and their attendants had to appear in public veiled. Priestesses were also veiled if they were married, but otherwise had the head bare.

All slaves and concubines had to go unveiled, and if one was caught in a veil the person who detected the imposture had to take the woman to the palace gates, where he was given her clothes, while she received fifty blows and had asphalt poured on her head.

If any one saw her veiled and did not denounce her he received fifty blows, his arms and clothes were seized, his ears were cut, and he was given a month's hard labor.

If a man married a concubine she was veiled. Her husband, standing before five or six witnesses, took a veil, and, placing it over her head, said: "This is my wife."

"These untameable beauties from less civilised tribes would naturally think of plundering a home rather than keeping it. The particularity of veiling for married women and refusing it to all others agrees with this subjection of a barbarous and unruly element."

One Hundred Are Delegates At "Y" Conference

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, June 30.—The Hangchow Union Girls School is host this week to the Kiangnan Young Women's Christian Association student conference. There are approximately one hundred delegates and leaders in attendance. Delegates have gone from Hangchow to a similar conference for men students at Shanghai Baptist College and others will leave tomorrow for the Middle School conference to be held at Nanking University from July 2-8.

The opium suppression movement leaders of the city have rested responsibility for further organisation and the actual conduct of the suppression campaign upon the shoulders of twelve directors elected at their last meeting on Saturday last. Officers were also elected. The president of the society is Honorable Tsoh Sao-kyi, who is vice president of the Provincial Assembly, and the vice-presidents are Messrs. Zun Sun-dzen, president of the local bar association and Lee Kyih, president of the Provincial Educational Assembly. The directors are planning to have committees on Publicity, the preparation of anti-opium literature, membership and administration.

As soon as the plan of action is announced students of the government schools are ready to take active steps in aid of the committee's plans for reaching the remote sections of the province. The students conferences in session now are planning a special session for consideration of the part that the Christian Associations of the schools represented can and should take in the suppression movement. It is to be pointed out that this is a crusade worthy of every patriotic effort the students are capable of.
